

Dressing for evening? The choice is yours

BY RUSTLE SHAND

Two major fashion events over the first two weeks of the month have put the spotlight on the evening dress. The first was the presentation of a personal interpretation of "evening dress" by some fashion publicists who would have you believe there are only two ways to go—the "black" and the "white" look.

Not so fast, we said. The pale colors are still gathered in the folds of the evening dress, and the dark colors are still in the folds of the evening dress. The choice is yours.

Spruce up packages — cheaply

Q. We have a large family and it seems that the purchase of wrapping paper, ribbon and cards for Christmas really cuts in on money I've budgeted for gifts. And besides I never seem to have enough gift wrapping around when I need it. Any suggestions?

A. Try a little more imagination. I had the same problem for years. I used to buy a lot of wrapping paper and ribbon and cards. But then I discovered that I could make my own wrapping paper. I used old newspapers and old magazines. I cut them up and glued them together. It was a lot cheaper and it was a lot more interesting.
