

Mother-daughter team to launch new garden club

A mother-and-daughter team is set to begin a new garden club that they hope will span the generation gap.

Marvel Steiger of Farmington and her daughter, Maria Bagozzi of Novi, have intended to join them in an organizational meeting at 6 p.m. Nov. 14 in the Universal Unitarian Church of Farmington, 14000 North of Grand River.

She is hoped to hear from people in various groups and in between. "I want to see if I have met anyone in my life," she said. "I want to see if I have met anyone in my life."

The Newspapers, Inc. and recently has been less active in garden club work.

Maria, married a couple of years ago, has enjoyed organic garden but wanted to learn more about arrangements and found there was a long waiting list for her mother's club.

Some of the women on that list recently decided to form a separate club but it was meeting in the daytime, and I wanted to work with my mother in a garden club," she said.

They represent different facets of garden interest as well as different generations.

Maria has the green thumb," her mother said. "She revives the plants I almost kill, and she's the one with the organic garden."

I seem to wind up growing weeds, and then I put them into arrangements. But mother and daughter both are anxious to welcome all flower enthusiasts related or not. And both will be glad to talk to prospective members. Call Marvel Steiger at 474-2129 after 6 p.m. or Maria Bagozzi at 319-8196.

Live 14 and is keen about the possibility of the group planning an organic garden at the church, said Mrs. Bagozzi, and he is quite interested.

The mother and daughter have done some gardening together while Marvel was a member of H.I. and Dale Garden Club of Farmington. Maria participated as a member in just a few gardening projects.

Marvel has been an accredited flower show judge and landscape design critic. She is employed as Lavonia education manager for the Observer & Eccen-
