Floral students turn gray

Each term for sale bears two prices, one for in-house sales (students, instructors, SWOVEC personnel) and a higher price for outsiders

But even that price is low compared to those of some floral shops. Instructor Mar-gery Haggerson is quick to point out that the student shop does not intend to com-pete with commercial florists.

places.
Family and friends provide the funds which maintain the gallery and the South-field-Lathrup art bus, started by Karen's memorial funds.

Southfield-Lathrup participates in an art show, the Southeastern Michigan Region Scholastic Art Awards. This year the regional cortest will be at Hudsons in downlown Detroit. Each school teacher may enter 10 students' works.

Entries are juried by the art teachers at Southfield-Lathrup and by judges at the show if a student wins the regional contest, his work is then sent to the national contest and judged for the third time.

THE STUDENT shop, divided into a dis-play area and a work space to the rear is in the vocational center at 1000 Best Road The center is administered by Walled Lake Schools and include students from seven surrounding school districts includ-ing West Bloomfield, Walled Lake and seven surrounding schooling West Bloomfield, Walled Lake and Farmington.

Mrs. Haggerson shares teaching duties with Margery Guzno.
The shop is open to the public for sales during class hours. 8-10-30 am. 11-30 am to 2 pm and 2-30-5 pm weeklys.

NEXT DOOR to the floral shop is the school's greenhouse, which is also offering live plants for sale to the public during the holidays.
