Society opens area wig bank

The American Cancer Society is offering a new service in the tri-county area—a wig bank for patients who have lost their hair resulting from treatment for the disease.

Farwell's Hair Design at 2742 81st Mile, Farmington, has a wide assortment of donated wigs which are distributed without charge to cancer patients who have obtained a letter from their local cancer society unit.

Wigs are available in all sizes, colors and styles, including page boy, wedge, gypsy, afro, fluff and others. The wigs are cleaned, disinfected and shaped and cut to fit the individual, according to the cancer society.

Hair replacements for children and men are also available. Hospital visits will be made to patients unable to reach the salon.

Persons interested in donating hair pieces to the American Cancer Society may ask a local unit for information on the nearest drop-off point. Wig donations are tax deductible.

Other salons who wish to participate in the wig bank program, and patients who want to obtain a wig, may call Carol Russell at the Oakland ACS office, 587-5553.

Correction

Because of an error in a year-end statement printed in Monday's Observer by Supt. David McDowell, Clarenceville school district, part of a sentence was eliminated and put his views in a different light.

The sentence should have read: "Educators and parents must believe that most students are more than capable of mastery of the basic skills. If we don't believe this, we can't serve a certain portion of the student body. Students must be willing to assume the responsibility to put forth the necessary time and energy to learn."

Degrees given

Farmington Hills residents were among those students receiving degrees from the University of Michigan-Dearborn at its winter commencement ceremonies conducted in Detroit's Masonic auditorium.

The commencement address: A reception for graduates and their families was in the Fairlane conference center on the UM-D campus.
