Area students win math prizes

Three Farmington Hills high school students won awards in the Michigan Section of the Mathematical Association of America for placing in the top 100 of 21,340 high school students participating in the 20th Annual Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition.

They are: Alfred Jean of 27970 Rollcrest, Kevin Perry of 23380 Glenbrook and Daniel Toga-saki of 29917 Mullane Drive.

The students will be honored at an awards program on the Western Michigan University Campus. Scholarships totaling $7,000 will be awarded to 40 of the winners at the banquet.

These scholarships are supported partly through contributions by the Burroughs Corp. and the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics and Michigan.

James Cox, Biagio Gucciardo, Norman Luebke, Barry Muscato, Raelene Orcutt, Susan Schultz and Daniel Soave served as high school supervisors for the students competing in the examination.

RICHARD FRANK-EL, a parent in the community, provided additional classroom instruction after school for interested students.

Indian guru promotes single faith for world

By JACKIE KLEIN

"Truth is one, many are its names," is the belief of Sadguru Sant Keshavadas, founder of Temple of Cosmic Religion, who is in Southfield to lecture at a new branch of the church.

The Sadguru (Sanskrit for self-realized master and dispeller of the darkness of ignorance) is hailed by his followers as a "prophet of divine love and universal peace."

"Cosmic religion is unity of all world religions," the 42-year-old Keshavadas explained. "Universal peace is a myth if religions divide man, and I have dedicated my life to spreading the word of one God."

"As Albert Einstein and Mahatma Gandhi predicted, interplanetary peace is possible only through universal love. Problems are created by hatred between religious sects in the world. I firmly believe the future religion of the world will be mysticism, the voice of saints."

Keshavadas will be at the Southfield branch of the temple, in the area bounded by Lahser, Telegraph, Ten Mile and Civic Center Drive, through March 1.

He will lecture on mysticism, meditation, Kundalini Yoga (the way to knowledge), self-realization through Yoga and Jesus the Christ. The number to call for more information is 356-2093.

KESHAVADAS is appearing on a number of Detroit area radio and television shows during his sixth visit here. He calls himself a "globe trotter," is on his ninth global tour and has visited a number of countries.

The Sadguru, who makes his home in the United States, has established five temples on the east coast and others in India, Trinidad and London, England. About 500 devotees live in the Detroit area, he said.

Keshavadas was born in Bhadravari in southern India. He earned a B.A. degree from Mahatma Gandhi Memorial College and a law degree from Udupi College. A multi-linguist, he has written a number of books and songs.

He's married and has three children.

"There are many existing churches and Yoga groups," he said. "People come to me because they learn I am giving meditation to them to attain universal consciousness. It is the meditation of light, asking God to illumine one's intellect. The approach is 'Godward' emotion, devotion and knowledge."

"We have symbols of all religions in our temples. We worship through 'Mantra,' the word of God. That is also a way of healing which I have done successfully. We try to unite the world through songs, chants, reciting scriptures and meditation. The songs of saints and messages of great masters light the way."

IN MARCH, Keshavadas will lecture at a retreat in Vanderbilt, Mich. on land donated to the temple by attorney Lovell Blumberg, a follower. Every September and October he conducts a Himalayan retreat. He has had an audience with Pope Paul VI with whom he discussed the harmony of all world religions.

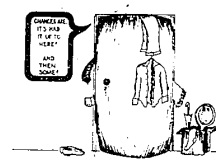

"On my birthday, July 22, during a three-day session at Virginia Beach, I will marry and remarry 108 American couples," he related. "They will be renewing their vows and expanding their consciousness."

"Love born of wisdom solves the problems of humanity and unites the world. Love is the law of life. It is one sun that reflects in all ponds. Systems of faith may be different, but God is one."

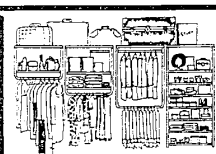

Keshavadas said many parents today believe they are losing their children to religious sects. Children who lack family and divine love, he said, come to a teacher who protects them and gives them psychological peace.

"To organize in such a way that children can't contact their families, kills the spirit," he said. "We don't alienate young persons from their parents. Leaders who think they are Masters lack humility and have lost the way to worship truth."
