While their refrigerators rested in ditches and mattresses hung from trees, residents gave thanks for their survival.

As Mrs. David Liberman, of 3334 Winchester, said at the time: "None of us have shed a tear over this. We are just so glad to be alive."

Her family returned to their rebuilt home the day after Thanksgiving after living in an apartment eight months.

TODAY, ALL but one of the homes hit has been repaired or rebuilt, according to Crites. He said the owner of the one Wellesley home not yet repaired has not been issued widation tickets since he has submitted building plans and is currently looking for a contractor.

One commercial site still vacant following its complete leveling by the tor-nado is the former Marathon service station location at the southwest corner of Maple and Orchard Lake Road.
A Marathon spokesperson was seddedled to meet with township officials Tuesday to discuss a self-serve Speedway gas facility proposed for the site.
Families and businesses were able to apply for federal disaster aid following both the tornado and earlier ice storms.

Vlasic recently moved from his Grosse Pointe home to Bloomfield Hills and is beaming over sales charts which show Vlasic outselling the next three compeling brands combined. The compeling brands combined the mustard pickle, is marketed by Vlasic because Mrs. Vlasic insisted. The hot seller right now, according to Cindy Vaubel, director of Vlasic kttchens, is the delicatesan dill, found in refrigerated sections of dairy counters. "I'm proud of it." Ms. Vaubel said of what she considers her baby, since she set up consumer testing and directed the research to make it a spicy snack.

Midwesterners have a different preference in the taste of pickles than people from other parts of the country. Vlasic said.

"In California, they like a sweeter pickle. In New York. the kosher dill is spicier." he said.

This was taken into consideration when Vlasic moved into the West Coast market last August. He developed taste formulas with careful consumer comparison pretesting in supernarkets.
