This course line-up is a far cry from 10 years ago when the first classes at Oakland were sponsored by the division and were held in converted chicken coops on the Wilson estate. One of those first students was the late Mrs. Alfred G. Dodge, who with her late husband, helped establish Oakland University with the gift of their estate and $2 million.

Since that time under the leadership of Dean Lowell Eklund, more than 30,000 adults have taken 1,500 courses in the evening program. The fall enrollment averages at the 5,000 mark, also a far cry from the first class of 10 years ago which numbered 413.

THIS SEPTEMBER, 38 new courses have been added to the curriculum which includes traditional and well-established classes in the fields of liberal arts, business and professional development. Instructors are drawn from agencies, businesses, and corporations in the tri-county region and from the Oakland University faculty.

Most classes will begin in the last week of September with the evening sessions meeting Monday through Friday at the Rochester campus, one mile off the I-75 Freeway.

Among new classes added this fall are those delving into the place of man in his society today, how to cope with that society and how to understand it. Other courses offer training in a better understanding of the self and of others.

"World Syntheses—A Cultural Updating for the Industrially Oriented Man" is a course which stresses the philosophical impact of technological achievements. The emergence of the individual is traced from the last Ice Age through Western culture.

NEW COURSES in the humanities area include: "Nature of Man" and "A Great Religions Seminar" which compares the differences and similarities between Buddhism, Christianity, Confucianism, Hinduism, Islam and Judaism.

"The Modern Novel: Varieties of Human Stress" probes into human stress resulting from conflicting moral, political or psychological forces as shown through important current English and American novels.

Also new this fall are courses offering training to supervisory personnel in the presentation of ideas, in communications, in group dynamics.

For women who wish to develop their talents, "Continuing Conversations" is a course designed to help them explore choices open to them.

For both men and women consumers, a new course, "Consumer Education: Buy-smanship" will cover truth-in-lending, truth-in-packaging, and comparative pricing.

Police also receive special consideration in this year's calendar with new courses for both professional and the interested laymen scheduled. These include: "Traffic Enforcement and Administration," "Criminal Interviewing and Interrogation," "Police Patrol—Procedures and Tactics."

CLASSES RANGE from seven weeks to 15 weeks in length. For more information on these and other courses, call the Division of Continuing Education at 338-7211, extension 2171, or write to the division in Room 603 South Foundation Hall, Oakland University, Rochester.

JOHN CORRIVEAU, 14, stands ready for a cool swim but must await the removal of the two huge branches in the foreground from the nine-foot pool usually reserved for the Corriveau family. The branches fell into the pool during an early morning thunderstorm Wednesday. But who wouldn't take a dip in this heat?

Leafy Swimmer Displaces People

The Corriveau family of Farmington Township must now take turns swimming in their backyard pool since its capacity was abruptly limited by the entry of an unwanted visitor early Wednesday morning.

Hogging two-thirds of the pool are two branches of a nearby maple tree and the branches are staunchly absorbing the coolness of the pool, refusing to budge for the regular users.

The large branches fell into the pool shortly after 5 a.m. on Aug. 7, either during the action of harsh winds or lightning during Wednesday morning's thunder storm.

On the way down, the branches smashed the fence enclosing the pool and ruined garbage receptacles standing outside the gate.

The damage can be easily repaired but Peter Corriveau, who owns the pool at 2750 Spring Valley Dr. is still considering the best way of removing the intruders from nine feet of water.

Corriveau is the owner of Corvo Iron Works in Livonia.

Keep It Beautiful

If America hired people for the job, it would take the largest sort of army to keep our country free of litter. But there's no need to hire anyone. It's a job we can do for ourselves. All of us. Every family that spreads a picnic lunch. Every boatman who cruises the lakes and waterways. Every motorist who uses our roads and highways.

It is the pleasure of the U. S. Brewers Association each year to give its fullest support to the Keep America Beautiful Campaign. Remember: Every Litter Bit Hurts. This is our land. Let's treat it right.
