

Kendallarks introduce new director

Kendallarks Chorus begins its 21st year of singing in the Farmington area with a new director, James Whitten.

The group's spring and summer calendar begins with a show on May 21 for the Eagles Auxiliary followed by a performance for the National Secretaries Association in the Plymouth Hilton in June. Several Farmington summer concerts are set for July.

The chorus's new director is a graduate of Western University, with a bachelor's degree in music, who also performs as a tenor soloist. He was a member of the university choir and the Vagabonds while he was at Western.

He, along with his wife Terese, are regular participants in the annual Danish Festival.

"I'm happy to have discovered a group as energetic and enthusiastic as the Kendallarks," says Whitten.
