How do we mark Law Day?

In Soviet Russia and other Communist countries, May 1 will be celebrated as a holiday dedicated to the world proletariat, to the international socialist movement.

In the United States, it will be dedicated to the celebration of "Law Day." Which of these two contrasting ideals will prevail?

The vision of a militant proletariat has raised Communism to tyrannical power over nearly a billion people. Against its strident call, the idea of law seems weak and vague. Even the more tangible weapons of the west, our technological resources nuclear arsenals, and artful diplomacy, have failed to provide us with the kind of world in which free men feel safe.

But the idea of law is more venerable than any of these weapons, and perhaps stronger. It was a force in human affairs long before the "proletariat" was invented. It has guided mankind since the time of Moses.

It was, according to the Romans, "the bond of civil society" and the basis of all honest government. It is (or should be) the instrument of justice: and justice is the foundation of peace.

THERE ARE ONLY two alternatives to law. They are terror on the one hand and chaos on the other.

In a society without rules, there would be no safeguards of liberty, no property rights, no protection for the weak, no basis for commerce or business or industry.

Conversely, a tyranny which recog-nizes as rules only the dictates of au-thoritarian government imposes com-pliance by ruthless power.

We live in an age in which dictators have supplanted law with force in nation after nation. The number of democracies in the family of nations has sharply decreased in the last 30 years.

The observance of Law Day is a reminder to us that we shall have to love liberty as passionately, cling to our ideals as stubbornly, and place our faith in spiritual values just as firmly as did our pioneer forefathers who founded this nation in freedom.

law. This respect is an indispensable element in the stability and progress of our society. It is in stark contrast to the fear of the law which dictatorships seek to instill. With them, the law is a device for subigation and control, with us the law is the instrument of preserving and extending freedom, equality and the rights of all citizens. There can be no freedom without law and the recognition of this fact should be deeply ingrained in the mind and consciousness of all free people.

Preservation of the ideals of individual human rights and equal justice polar law require much of us, who are fortunate to enjoy these privileges. The observance of Law Day is a reminder to us that we shall have to over liberty as passionately, client to prove the hunger and thirst for the rule of law to be used to the control of the
