HELEN'S RESCUE

Helen, and her pretty white frock win its fring ribbons clong in folds about her chilled times. Her wealth of hair curred more closely to her head and shone in the flashess of lightning like a in halo above her paile and terriled free. The blinding sheets of rain had shateful the shore and, despiring of recent Helen present the shore and, despiring of recent Helen present like certain destroy. Helen present like certain destroy the shore and the could come from so small a body.

Suddenly from behind the veil of rain came a faint "Hallon" and the color come back to Helen's pale face. Safety was at hand. She was certain of it, for that was Begrie's voice. She knew she wins safe when he was near. Filo barked and howled in alternation, and soon, dimly seen through the blinding rain, came a dony impelled by Regsie's strong, arrus. As he drew up to the tassing skiff in the work of the dory. It was a long and desperite was almost causing skiff and desperite was almost changed and desperite was almost changed and desperite was almost changed the bott and desperite was almost exhausted when a score of willing hands grasped the boat at the shore and Helen fell finto the father's shore and Helen fell finto the father's you owe it to them to be sure that the baked foods they eat are made with

ROYAL BAKING POWDER.

There is a very sound reason for this, even aside from quality and flavor.

There is no alum or other chemical in ROYAL BAKING POWDER to retard digestion. No mineral to injure the delicate membranes of the stomach. No bitter taste to spoil the appetite.

Royal gives you the surety of purity and is by far more economical in the end. Therefore all thoughtful mothers use
