YOUR COLD IS EASED AFTER THE FIRST DOSE

"Pape's Cold Compound" then breaks up a cold in a few hours

Relief comes instantly. A dose taken every two hours until three doses are taken usually breaks up a severe cold and ends all the gripe misery.

The very first dose opens your clogged-up nostrils and the air passages in the head, stops nose running, relieves the headache, dullness, feverishness, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffling! Clear your congested head! Nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only a few cents at any drug store. It acts with out assistance, tastes nice, contains no quinine—insist upon Pape's!—Adv.

MUST BE MELTED IN TOWER

Only Way City of St. Louis Can Get Rid of Bell Which Renders Structure Unsafe.

The two-ton bell which hangs in the tower of the city hall has made the tower unsafe, but the bell is so large it would be dangerous to try to tip it down, so it is to be melted right where it is with acetylene blow torches, such as are commonly seen in use by workmen repairing car tracks, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Building Commissioner McKelvey pronounced the tower unsafe as long as the bell remains, because the steel supports have been corroded. Moreover, he said, an attempt to lower the bell would be very dangerous, therefore the decision to take it down a bucketful at a time.

The only time in recent years that the bell has been rung was the day of the armistice celebration. It was rung when the building was constructed in 1904. The bell cost about $2,000. The expense of removing it will be about $15,000. It is six feet high and four feet in diameter at the base.

What You Will in Suits

"What are they wearing?" in suits has ceased to be as interesting as "What are they showing now?" It has come to pass that women demand a variety of styles and a chance to indulge individual taste, and manufacturers have fastened these demands by replenishing the retailers' stocks with new developments of the season's modes. The story for winter is about to close and it reveals that we may wear suits having a straight-line silhouette or those with fitted waists, with equal propriety, that redingote styles have grown in popularity and that velvet has made long strides since the beginning of the season. It is in great demand for mid-winter. Except for sport suits the manufacturers will have little more to offer this season, for they are already engrossed with suits for spring and promise more radical departures from the styles of today than for many past seasons.

Two suits, distinctly different in type, but each showing an interpretation of the long coat styles, are shown above. The stately model at the left is made of duxetyn and reflects the influence of the redingote besides taking cognizance of the widened hip idea. It is trimmed with rat-tail braid and a few buttons and two very narrow tucks in the coat, above the hem, invite attention to the accuracy of the tailor's art. A further testimony is offered by a taut panel that is cut in one with the belt and widens above the waistline, making a smart diagonal closing at the left side. A muffer collar of sealskin bears out the elegance of this design and probably adds more than a pretty penny to the price of the suit.

Silverstone is to be credited with much of the style which gives assurance to the wearer of the suit at the right. This fuzzy material with a silver sheen will delight the tourist and as shown here is a model that could not be improved upon for traveling.

One-Piece Frocks for Midwinter

The one-piece frock has its advantages for the busy women of today, and now divides honors with the tailored suit in the estimation of business or socially active people. Certain of these one-piece models were launched at the beginning of the season under a new and very adequate name, as "all-day dresses." This title describes them and points out their advantages for the woman whose affairs give her little time for making changes of her costume.

The one-piece dress is developed in all the fabrics that are used for suits, and in some that are not often used for suits. In the picture above, a frock of dark blue tricotine demonstrates how effectively this practical material has been worked up into a tailored dress that is charmingly graceful and chic. It is really a masterpiece of designing with a panel down the front from neck to hem, and a new management of the sides of the skirt where big patch pockets are set in. Below them the material in wide plaits simulates a long tunic. The panel at the front avoids being too plain by means of a tuck set on a line with the pockets, and above it are pendant silk ornaments. Below the tuck, round-covered buttons are set on with the beautiful accuracy that is the glory of tailored clothes. The waist is bloused back and front, affording a straight-line silhouette. Buttons and plaits embellish the panel in it, and buttons finish off the very long and shapely sleeves. This model has the unusual virtue of looking well on almost any figure.

Satin furnishes the best material for a frock like that at the right. It is simply designed, being a three-tier skirt and a tunic with satin-covered buttons and sash by way of adornment.

VASSAR GIRLS DRESS DOLLS

Students at Famous College Revive Old Custom for the Benefit of Neighborhood Children.

People who have been brought up to believe that college girls are invariably of masculine type might be interested to know that the students at Vassar college are at present in the midst of a doll-dressing contest. Nor is this contest a new event at Vassar. Every year before Thanksgiving 600 dolls are bought by the Christian association and distributed among the students to be dressed in time for Christmas for the children of the surrounding neighborhood. At an appointed time the dolls are assembled by their respective owners and placed row by row for inspection. The best-dressed doll is selected and her owner is rewarded with a prize.

The custom has been observed at Vassar for many years. For the last two years, however, it has been omitted, owing to the exigencies of war work. But now that those services are not needed the work has been taken up again with an added interest and enthusiasm.

Accidents in Everyday Life.
Though not generally known, it is a fact that from two to three times as many fatal accidents occur in American homes, streets and roads each year as in the industries of the country. As the death or incapacitation of a skilled workman has the same effect on industry whether the accident occurs in the shop or out of them, the national safety council considers itself almost as vitally interested in public safety as in industrial accident prevention. We lost 50,000 men in the war, and in the same period 125,000 persons through accident.—Scientific American.

Logs Set Afire by Friction.
The curious spectacle of grass logs set afire by friction of their rapid descent in a long chute was witnessed recently in the mountains of Washington state. Logs of exceptional length were needed for special water-front pilings, and could be found only at a great height. The chute down which the cut timbers were slid was over a mile long, and the big sticks attained a tremendous velocity. One that "jumped the track" on the way, shattered a 24-in. oak tree in its course, without material damage to itself.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.
