

BULLY!

If Bilious, Constipated or Headachy, take "Cascarets".

Feel grand! Clean up inside! Your system is filled with liver and bowel poison which keeps your skin sallow, your stomach upset, your head foggy and aching. Your bowels are turning into poison and you can't feel right. Don't stay bilious or constipated. Feel splendidly always by taking Cascarets occasionally. They act without griping or inconvenience. They never sicken you like Calomel, Salts, or other nasty, harsh pills. They cost so little too—Cascarets work while you sleep. Adv.

The Housing Problem. "You are charged with disorderly conduct."

"Your honor, I was the first man to reach the office of a real estate agency that advertised an apartment for rent."

"This man here who says I blacked his eye, tried to push in ahead of me. He as easy as you can on me, your honor. I had hard luck."

"How so?"

"While we were fighting another fellow landed the flat."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs. It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses. It is not recommended for everything. It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles. A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmor & Co., Birmingham, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Their Unusual Record. "Anything in particular happened while I've been gone?" asked Mrs. Johnson, upon her return from the quilting bee.

"You bet!" triumphantly replied Capt. Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, who had remained at home. "Only one of the children fell out of a tree, one into the creek, and one got scolded; only three pulled something over onto themselves, just two got dog bit, but the dog set himself afire, and amongst 'em they had only seven fights, and among them few didn't amount to nothing."—Kansas City Star.

YOUR COLD IS EASED AFTER THE FIRST DOSE "Pape's Cold Compound" then breaks up a cold in a few hours.

Relief comes instantly. A dose taken every two hours until three doses are taken usually breaks up a severe cold and ends all the gripe misery.

The very first dose opens your clogged-up nostrils and the air passage in the head, stops nose running, relieves the headache, dullness, feverishness, meazling, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffing! Clear your congested head! Nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only a few cents at any drug store. It acts without nausea, tastes nice, contains no quinine—insist upon Pape's!—Adv.

Valued for His Silence. "The Teasville Clinton plays a handsome compliment to Elphinsto Sogby, an old citizen who died the other day."

"What does the editor of the Clinton have to say?"

"This: 'The Hon. Elphinsto Sogby sat on the platform at public meetings in this community for thirty years, and in all that time was never known to make a speech. His place will be hard to fill.'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Cuticura Soothes Itching Scalp. On retiring gently rub spots of dandruff and itching with Cuticura Ointment. Next morning shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Make them your every-day toilet preparations and have a clear skin and soft, white hands.—Adv.

Holders to make tiny electric lamps used for decorative purposes resembling candles have been invented.

Among the Eskimos In Alaska

By James Vernal Clarke

DR. J. A. MARQUIS

AN ESKIMO HOUSE AT PT. HOPE

CEMETERY FENCED WITH WEDDING BONES

DR. MARQUIS AND ESKIMO CHILDREN

JOE SOKONIK

WOMEN without noses are not usually considered beautiful, yet those of the older generation of Eskimos in Alaska are so. It is so because they are so proud of their appearance has been thus changed. It is to them a continual reminder of the fact that they were the belles of the village and their mutilated faces advertise this distinction to all who see them.

"The men of the Eskimo tribe have few bad habits," says Dr. John A. Marquis, secretary of the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. & who recently returned from an extensive six months' trip to Alaska. "But they are inordinately jealous of their women. This jealousy was formerly so strong that before they married, better fellows would bite off their pretty daughters' noses in order to keep them in the family longer, but more often an Eskimo, after marrying, would bite off the nose of his beautiful wife so that she would no longer have attraction for other men."

This nose-biting was practiced frequently not because the Eskimos themselves were so unscrupulous about walking off with their neighbors' wives, but because many from other races would happen along and be unduly attracted. According to Dr. Marquis, there are many old women today who walk about hooded and respected, and as proud as queens, because their noses are no more. Yet the custom is dying out and is not now so widely practiced, probably because the modern woman idea is also penetrating Alaska and the younger belles raise objection to having their noses altered.

Despite the fact, however, that European and American influence have made some changes, the life and language of the Eskimo still remain very much like those of the stone-age inhabitants of Europe, of whom they are said to be the last surviving representatives. One peculiar feature noted by Dr. Marquis was that the Eskimos, while living in groups of villages, appeared to have no chiefs or rulers. For the hunt they elect a chief who is chief for the hunt, and when that is over his authority ends until the next hunt.

This Presbyterian secretary noted in the village, however, Kivalina, Alaska, an Eskimo who seemed to have an unusual degree of authority. This was especially unusual because the man in question was a cripple and was considered continuously to be a man in a rough sled which had been constructed for him. His name was Joe Sokonik. Dr. Marquis learned, and he was a school teacher. Investigating, it was found that he had a remarkable character.

Some years previous he had been taken down with a serious illness in which, because of the filthy conditions surrounding the homes of the Eskimos, he went through much suffering. As part of his cure, he underwent an operation of the spine, which almost prevented him from moving. An American missionary learned of his condition and although when he arrived he suffered but broken out with loathsome sores because of infection and lack of proper care, this missionary at once took him in charge and began to treat him. Daily for a year or more this missionary carefully bathed the sores with ointment and tended Joe Sokonik. While he gave medical attention, he taught.

When finally the loathsome disease had been gotten rid of, Sokonik could not move his legs, as they were doubled up under him in a position from which they could not be extricated. Not dismayed, however, the missionary had built for him a sled which fitted his condition. On this sled and along the main door to the platform, to which it is lifted, and from which he teaches. At the close of the season the sufferer and his sled are again bumped down the steps and off to his home. But Joe Sokonik does not mind; he is teaching his people and he is profoundly grateful for what was done for him. Although it might be suspected he would become his more cheerful as his brothers in more fortunate circumstances.

Although the Eskimo towns have no chiefs, Kivalina comes nearer to having a head than any other village, and that leader is none other than the afflicted Joe Sokonik. Joe is also the head leader of his village and is annually elected to that honor. He is a splendid leader and holds an excellent record for manliness. With Joe Sokonik in the lead, the people know their hunt will be successful and he has not yet failed them. From his sled in the sled on the deck of a ship he has brought down and continues to bring down many a seal, walrus or polar bear.

Afflicted as he is, Joe can only sleep by dropping his head forward on his knees. That and the movement of his head, and the only successful motion allowed him since the disease claimed him.

Dr. Marquis returned with other interesting stories of the Eskimo race, concerning their customs and their condition. He especially stressed the terrific havoc wrought by the influenza epidemic of last year in which nearly half of the Eskimo population of Alaska was wiped out.

"They seemed to have no resistance to the epidemic," said the Presbyterian secretary. "Probably their dirty conditions of living and homes helped to spread the disease, and undoubtedly their habit of herding together and not separating the well from the sick accounted in large measure for the inroads made."

If it had not been for government regulation which prevented any traders going to the infected districts or from the infected districts to the Eskimos, it is probable that there would have been very few left of this race at the end of the epidemic last year, declared Dr. Marquis.

One peculiar custom noted by the Presbyterian secretary was the habit of building fences of white bones about their cemeteries. It used to be that "whalebone was regarded as very precious, but because of the many successful substitutes that are now being used, it has lost much of its commercial value. What peculiar property attaches to the whalebone that it should be such an excellent material for cemetery fences is not known, unless the scarcity of other material makes its use cheap and desirable.
