BEFRANK COMERFORD.

By Frank, Comerford.

I med a young Amèrican major just heck from the French ffoot. I had known him for many years. Before the United States entered the war he was one-of the many impatient at our duty to Join the fight when the ruthers and the state of the state of the transparent of the state of the control of the Louisiania, sending to cold, wet graves American women and children. I distingly remember his face as he read to headlines in the pupers telling of the murderous slaughter of Americans on the high seas. Now, when he greeted me he startled with his first words, "The war is over." I'm a believell." I'd ild out know what with his first words, "The war is over. I'm a believell' of the murderous of the control of the majority of the control of the majority of the control of the contr

I'm a bojshevik." I did not know what the word meant, yet it carried to my mind an impression, and while the impression was hazy, it was clear at least in one particular. It sounded like the bontession of a crime. I have been a conservative type. Before the war one would have hapled him to be particular, in which is a conservative type. Before the war one would have hapled him to be particular, or and I sill! think this before August; 1034, he was a pacifist in head and it. I was only the call of a high cause, the fight for an ideal in which heart. It was only the call of a high cause, the fight for an ideal in which heart. I was sonly the call of a high cause, the fight for an ideal in which the believed, that had made him a soldier. It has respect he was typical to 90 per cent of his countrymen.

wondered how this nine-tettered word had become the vehicle for so many sensations that disturbed peace of, mind, and sounded alarm.

Where had the word come from and what colopany had it kept that so found its soul? What did it really mean—high it a default meaning? Was it a bug like the "fot" germ! Had and to the hearts of men to altere the heavenly message. "Peace, on earth, good will to men." Would it run around the world as a scourge? Was it a posspeript to the bloody war lessoon, prophesying more angulah and terus than four years' fighting had brought? Would the world coming out of the war bent, now be broken?

Or was it a meaningless myth? Was the word a boyle, a high-toner wearing and a word a real world a company of the word a boyle, a bad ole, a night-mare wearing and "I you a tired, nerrous world word" Real Meaning.

In every mind was the thought and from every tongue fell the word. Russia had given the world a word. It had encircled the globe. Everywhere people were speaking the word—it found foligment in every brain, a living place in every language. Its asshad become universal. The old, the property of the proper next come and a the outset that most of us have the habit of uning terms closely. Sedom do we give itimevor thought to the exact, real meaning of blashwism is too important to the world not to try to understand it. There is a difference between having the acquaistance of a word and knowing; the former is a mere introduction, the latter an intimacy.

a mere introduction, the latter an in-image.
Since the war, when the fastidious diner wearly orthird his consomme and the watter brings it a bit tardily or cold, he thinks' to hinself, or if courageous enough to speak his mind, he calls the cook a holshevit. He has found a word to express his Irritation, it serves his proface feelings and at the same time saves his song respect-chility.

It serves his profane feelings and at the same time saves his suny respectability.

See Boisheviem Everywhere.

Once the maid asking for an attention of provided a knowing smile. Her mistress granted the request, charged it up to a possible romance and generally suspected the policeman on the beat. Since the war it is different. The maid is looked upon with suspicion. Her motives are questioned. The request is considered a symptom of the new terrible disease, boishevism. The mistress thinks to herself: The maid doesn't want to work any more; she is down with the epidemic. The office boy, working the reliable excuse that his grandmother has died again, to get on anticrosom off to go to the ball game, by trying to shirk work, in the opinion of his semployers who formetly, when such as major who formetly, when such as the supplied of the history took him back to his own boylood ulays when hed used the grandmother yarn to answer, the call of the simple symptoms of the pred great in every supplied to the pred great in every
