STATE FAIR COSTS GOING UP; MINN. CHARGES MORE

Hamline, Minn.—With the cost of operating a fair having increased 50 per cent, the Minnesota State Fair has been forced to announce a new schedule of admission prices. General admission to the grounds has been advanced from 50 to 75 cents, but the management is endeavoring to keep prices down for all attractions with in the gate.

Detroit, Mich.—George W. Dick, secretary-manager of the Michigan State Fair, when told of the advance in the admission fee of the Minnesota State Fair, said that he had no comment to make as yet. He declared he is doing his best to keep costs down but he said it is obvious that good management dictates that a fair should pay its own way, and that he meant to increase rather than cut down the quality of the features of the Michigan Fair.

Grading Saves Big Loss In Marketing Products.

Standardization of farm products is being widely recognized as fundamental to improvement in marketing. Without well-recognized, acceptable, standard grades, the various market news services of the bureau of market, U. S. D. A. can not be made fully effective because there must be a recognized basis for buying and selling, a common language through which grower, shipper, transportation company, and dealer may clearly understand each other.

Standardization, moreover, eliminates waste and prevents the shipment of diseased with sound fruits and vegetables and of overripe with properly matured specimens. Failure properly to classify results in deterioration, decay and inefficient distribution. Much of this loss might be prevented by sorting products into grades at the point of production, packing each grade separately to minimize contamination, and converting inferior or unmarketable grades into by-products.

How Much and What Kind of Food Shall You Eat?

As the habits and conditions of individuals differ, so, too, their needs of nourishment differ, and their food should be adapted to their particular requirements. Each person should learn by experience what kinds of food will nourish him with the least discomfort, and should avoid those which do not agree with him. Too much food leads to indigestion and occasions a waste of energy and strength in the body as well as a waste of nutritive material, say food specialists, of the United States department of agriculture. While in the case of some foods as purchased, notably meats, some waste is unavoidable, the pecuniary loss can be diminished both by buying those kinds in which there is the least waste, and by utilizing more carefully than is ordinarily done portions of what is usually classed as refuse.

Mr. Haberdscher
The evening meal was almost over and the table conversation had turned to a discussion of high prices.

"I know a Haberdscher on Pennsylvania street that is selling his stock at half price," volunteered a young member of the family.

"Your uncle knows that man real well," said grandmother, between sips of tea.

"What man are you speaking of?" queried mother, a bit puzzled.

"Why, that Mr. Haberdscher," returned grandmother, with an air of innocence.

Grandmother is still to be convinced that Mr. Haberdscher is not his name, for having read it with her own eyes, some place up over the door—Indianapolis News.
