Falls of the Free Press knows that it's Keith, not Kevin, not Kevin hot Kevin we reported herewith that it was a Kevin (not a Keith) Heavenridge who scored against Pontiac Northern. Then, how does brother Falls get into the act?

Well, since it's impossible to be at more than one place at one time, it's necessary to use "other eyes" to help report on Observerland games. And, who could do a better job for us than Mr. Falls, whose interests in North Farmington High are very understandable?

Son Bobby goes there and it's around the Falls homestead (two doors away from the Mickey Stanleys of the Tigers) that so many of the North Farmington players drop by.

Well, to make a long story short, Joe passed along the facts on Heavenridge and we not only did a re-write job for the Observer, but also for the Friendly Free Pess. And, darn it, if we could read out own writing and it all comes out Kevin (not Keith) Heavenridge.

So, who gets kidded the most? Innocent Joe Falls.

NO SOONER DID the Observer hit the streets last week with our note: "Why not a girls athletic league in Observerland?" ... than athletic director Joe Mraena of Thurston called to let us know that there IS such a circuit operating in these rate.

that there IS such a circuit operating in the parts.

The Northwest Suburban League, which consists of Franklin, Thurston, North Farmington and Glenn from Observerland, plus Oak Park and Birmingham Groves, does sponsor sports for the gals in five activities: speed swimming, tennis, volleyball, track and field and synchronized swimming. Gymnastics is optional now, but will be incorporated later.

Five dual meets are held in each sport with a league championship meet following.

How about other schools?

SPEAKING OF THURSTON wasn't it Coach Bill McDonald her claimed the officials goofed when they stepped to the claimed the ficials goofed when they stepped to the field?

And, wasn't it Maskin who agreed with McDonald the call should have been just five yards? It all goes to show how dated McDonald and yours truly are. It seems both of us missed the new rule that calls for a 15-yard penalty when a team has a twelfth man participating in a play. Here's just another case when the referees did the job they were supposed to ... and probably drew some criticisms when they knew what was right and what was wrong ... and a lot of others didn't know what was right.

ENOUGH ABOUT the goof-uns:

ENOUGH ABOUT the goof-ups: Remember Bernie Carbo, ex-Franklin High baseball and Greater Livonia summer league

Dastrain the's the kid who was drafted by the Cincinnati Reds in the first round and was paid a fairly neat chunk of cash to sign.

Well, Bernie appears to be ready to make with the Reds next season. He has just fin-shed a tremendous season for Indianapolis the American Association.

Consider these statistics: Carbo wrapped out 145 hits and wound up with a .359 average, third highest in the league. He tied for the top in doubles with 37 and finished in a tie for second in the homer department with 21. He also drove in 76 homer ucparation.

Carbo is now with the Reds, but they haven't had any opportunities to use him since they're involved in that heated four-team race for the Western Division pennant in the National League.

CAN'T BLAME Redford Township's Bob Miler, the ex-major leaguer who now coaches the University of Detroit baseball team, for being slightly upset over another Redford Townshipper. Bill Fahey, the former Redford Union star, who caught for the Titans last season, has dropped out of U. of D. and enrolled at the Port Huron Junfor College.

According to one "expert" on sandlot and college baseball, Fahey's switch clears the way for his being drafted by a pro team and then signing a contract as early as next Jan-

Had he remained at U. of D., he couldn't have been eligible for the pro draft until he was 21 years old or his eligibility had expired — which-ever came first. He's just starting his sophomore year.

There's good news mixed in with bad at the Detroit Race Course. The bad news emanates from the barn area fire Saturday night that destroyed seven urday night that destroyed seven thoroughbreds and a pony. The series of fire prevention clas-ses conducted by the DRC and a fire wall midway through the L' barn held down the damage.

The good news comes in the announcement that Nodouble, winner of the Michigan Mile a pear ago and a prime candidate for 'horse of the year' honors has been nominated for this year's renewal two weeks hence on Saturday, Oct. 4.
