

Foreign fashion affairs come home

Designed by Sonia Rykiel, a white maribou jacket tops a white wool gold-sequined sweater teamed with a slim wrap white wool skirt-belted in gold kid.

The look from Florence is casual, slim and off-hand. Genny designs a white cotton duck-cloth classic slim skirt worn with a white cotton shirt and a brown leather vest from Bulle and Pupe of Italy.

On the following pages you will find some of the most diversified fashions in the world -- available to you in your own hometown.

Fresh new ideas join those drawn from the past in designs originating in Chicago, California, India, New York, Paris, Rome, Milan, London and Florence.

The international fashion message is clear -- express your individuality but do so with narrower, slenderer clothes. The clothes say fashion is fun, but not fantasy this season. The peasant has been replaced by the southern belle and the gypsy by the slinky lady of the '30s.

The menswear haberdashery look is still evident but with eased, feminine overtones. The classic, understated look favored by many is very evident as designers continue to respond to the American way of life.

Nothing is tight this year except perhaps Valentino's waist cinchers and the ankle strap of this season's sandal.
