Styrofoam Replaces Granite In Sculptoring

By ELIZABETH WISSMAN

Styrofoam relates to art as Christmas ornaments in most instances. But over at the Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington, styrofoam relates to art as sculpture.

At the moment, the Ridge's 85 frosh and advanced sculpture students are having the time of their lives with 37 pieces of styrofoam, donated to the college by Dow Chemical Co.

Letter To The Editor

Town Club Thanked

EDITOR:

So often in our busy lives we pass off great gifts with the same simple "Thank You" as we give when someone passes the salt. We thought that this letter might extend our gratitude to the Town Club of Farmington, in a more special way.

It is surprising to many, but nonetheless true, that many parents find it necessary to send their children back to school in the summer's gym shoes, little cotton skirts which are being used for the third year, and sweaters with holes in the elbow.

Besides giving many items of used clothing to these children, the members of the Town Club buy new shoes and boots for many children in our school. Most parents are aware of the difficulty of passing used shoes down to the younger children. Not only is the fit poor and causes blisters, but often the shoes simply do not last beyond the first child.

So, we certainly appreciate the assistance the Farmington Town Club gives our school in preparing our children to learn. Even more so, the parents and children appreciate Town Club's generosity.

A room full of orchids to the Town Club of Farmington.

New At FHS

A recent addition to the faculty at Farmington Junior High is Mrs. Jerry (Jeanie) Young, wife of Farmington High's teacher and coach. Mrs. Young recently graduated from Michigan State with a major in English and minor in history and has been admitted to the master's program in English. The mother of two children, the new teacher is past community service director of the Jaycee Auxiliary and present corresponding secretary, was 1969 Founders Festival secretary.

number 37, which wouldn't divide as very well among 82 students.

As the college managed it, the 16-foot-long original 37 pieces were cut up into smaller easy-to-manage hunks on which the students will sculpt to their heart's content.

HOW DO YOU TURN a hunk of styrofoam into a piece of sculpture?

First you have to have Theodore Striewski as a professor.

Striewski is a pioneer in the use of styrofoam for the creation of sculpture.

A paradoxical gentleman, who looks like a longhair with the beard he wears, Striewski is really a dedicated teacher whose interest in life is to teach youth to love art and sculpture as he does.

HE FEELS STYROFOAM is the ideal medium with which to do this.

"It is so easy to work with," he explains. "It's so carve-able—you can just whip out any shape or form you want."

But how do you make a piece of white, grainy styrofoam into a work of art?

FIRST, you cut your basic form as a base. This you can attach with rods and armatures to attach varied other shapes and sizes as your creation dictates.

Over this basic form you place coils of fiberglass. This gives you a surface you can smooth and polish with grinders.

It sounds like the "last of the season" barbeque party at Harry and Betty Anderson of Newcastle Ave. It was the Hobby Club cookout, where the steaks were provided by the club, which makes them taste even better than usual.

The corn on the cob, also the last of the season, was provided by and grown by expert Ed Kustion of Orchard Lake Road. When you taste that corn on the cob, you have to admit he is an expert because there just isn't any better cobbled corn anywhere.

IT JUST SO, happened that the Andersons had out-of-town guests that weekend. Mildred and Ed Kileman of Cincinnati, Ed is a retired baseball pitcher who participated in the game with the Cleveland Indians in 1948 when they won the pennant and world series.

It also just so happened that the Hit and Pitch Club was having a golf outing that week. Ed heard about it while in town and would have attended if previous commitments at home were not so pressing.

Ed Kileman and Mickey Harris, also of Farmington, did spend a couple of hours reminiscing about their "good old baseball days." Mickey attended the golf outing and says it was very well attended.

The Women's Council of St. Fabian Church invites you to their rummage sale on Saturday, Oct. 4 from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. St. Fabian is on Twelve Mile just east of Farmington Road.

MEMBERS OF District 1, Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, Inc. have been invited to attend a lecture-demonstration in the Rackham Auditorium on Oct. 2, at 4 p.m.

Jack F. Daniels, noted flower arranger from California will be the guest speaker. The lecture, entitled "Trends and Traditions in Plant Forms and Design," has been arranged by the Charles W. Warren Co. as a gesture of appreciation to members of District 1 for 14 years of friendship and cooperation in staging flower arrangements and table setting exhibitions at their Washington Blvd. store.

Farmington residents and their husbands, Mrs. Kenneth Trombley and Mrs. Keith Wiloughby, who have worked with a large committee of well-known garden club members throughout the metropolitan area to bring this program about, will attend a dinner party, beginning Oct. 2 in the Detroit Athletic Club in honor of

Frontczak Advises 'Keep Pace'

A candidate for the charter commission from Farmington Township, Walter T. Frontczak of 26359 Dundalk Lane, states he believes calm and orderly growth of the Farmington area is still possible with four separate governmental units, but believes "That the organization of our government must be accelerated to keep pace with rapid economic developments."

Frontczak says, "It is impor-alive that we consolidate our natural community into a governmental unit in order that problems shared by all of us may be worked out by all of us together. If we do not soon move toward formalizing our unity, we will likely crystallize with two or three dominant governments."

A resident of Farmington Township for over five years, the candidate is executive director of the International Institute of Detroit and a former Wayne County welfare administrator. He holds a master's degree from Wayne State University, is a member of the Human Rights Day Committee, charter member of the Farmington Community Center and a member of the general council of the United Presbyterian Church's highest adjudicatory in Michigan. He and his wife, Lenore, have three children.

MACLD To Hear Expert

FARMINGTON The "Management of the Hyperkinetic (Hyperactive) Child" has been chosen as the topic when Dr. Carol E. Pearson speaks to the Farmington Chapter of the Michigan Association of Children with Learning Disabilities at 8 p.m. Oct. 8 in East Junior High School.

Dr. Pearson is an assistant clinical professor of medicine at Wayne State University and a consultant at the Children's Center of Metropolitan Detroit. Also, she is currently serving as associate director of the Wayne County Juvenile Court Clinic for Child Study. A member of the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology, she has had a private practice specializing in adolescent and child psychiatry for the past five years.
