

Pulling it all together

Committee members who are putting together the Farmington Artists Club's spring exhibit are (from left) Jean Rothenberg, Ann Stirm, Roz Kerr, Agnes Hodge, Barb Tourney, Jo Schmidt, Lou Gaddis, Eva Briggs, Judy Gresser, Rose Grunwald, Sue Ebel and Rose Barr. Ms. Gaddis is president of the club, and Ms. Grunwald is exhibit chairwoman. The show is set for April 21-23 in Farmington Hills Community Library. There is no admission charge.

Children's records tell stories on safety

The Farmington Area Jayettes continues its promotion for the safety of children by offering a new "Hear, See and Do" record.

The record was produced in support of the National Safety Council's Accident Prevention Program, and features Hanna-Barbera characters.

The characters tell stories about keeping safe while at home, while riding a bike, while crossing the street, when swimming, and while participating in many other activities.

The record costs $3.95 and comes with a coloring book and a poster. The package is geared for the 3-6-year-old child.

Persons interested in purchasing the record set may contact Melodie Halliday at 553-2455, or Jan Snyder at 474-8600.

Mercy giving concert

Our Lady of Mercy High School, in Farmington, will present its annual spring concert on April 21 and 23.

The concert will feature a variety of musical offerings, including performances by the Senior Glee and the Mercyaires, plus compositions by David Gates, Michel LeGrand, and others. The Mercy Concert Choir and Orchestra will also perform.

The first concert, on Friday, April 21, will begin at 8:15 p.m. The repeat performance on Sunday, April 23, will begin at 3 p.m.

Noted for its numerous performances the Mercyaires was formed in 1982 with 20 girls chosen each year by audition from a group of nearly 100 applicants. In addition to vocal, instrumental and dance talents, the Mercyaires must maintain a high academic standing and participate in an average of 12 extra-curricular hours of rehearsal each week.

Tickets for the concerts are available through students or at the Mercy High School business office.
