Housing critics launch attack

split the city down the middle.

"We just want the council to recognize the people who signed the petitions are trying to tell them something."

The Homeowners launched the petition drive after 2 1/2 years of controversy concerning mid-rise senior housing resulted in the council's approval of the RCE and RCE-1 zoning in October. Council members Jan Dejan, Joanne Smith, Earl Oppert, Fred Lichtman and Robert Amori approved the zoning ordinances. Mayor Joan Dudley and Councilman Keith Deacon voted against the ordinances.

In November's election, mid-rise housing foes Jody Soronen and Joe Alkateeb gained seats on the council. Dudley and Lichtman did not run for reelection. Amori was defeated in his bid, and Catherine Jones filled the third seat on the council.

New clue to crib death is found

University of Michigan scientists believe they have a clue to the cause of crib death.

It appears to be a possible hypersensitivity reaction," evidenced by the presence of antibodies (IgG) in lung tissue of infants who had gone to sleep only to be discovered lifeless an hour or more later.

Medically described as Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS), its victims expire of unknown, non-accidental causes. The syndrome is defined as the sudden death of any infant or young child, which is unexpected by the baby's history, and in which a thorough post-mortem examination fails to demonstrate an adequate cause.

Many infants die suddenly, unexpectedly, and shockingly from suffocation, brain injury, or swallowing a foreign object. They do not always succumb in their cribs, but sometimes fall from them, collapse while playing, or choke.
