Jewish artists bring show to Temple Beth El

Two of the most important Jewish stage artists today, Howard DaSilva and Martha Schlammé, will come to Temple Beth El for a performance at 8 p.m. May 5. The temple is located at Fourteen Mile and Telegraph in Birmingham.

The show is without charge, sponsored by Sholem Aleichem Institute, and Moishe Haar Memorial Foundation.

DaSilva is a versatile artist and Ms. Schlammé is a folk singer and actress. DaSilva, who has performed in the theatre, on film and on television, won Academy Award nominations for his performances in "The Lost Weekend" and "Two Years Before the Mast." He will give a one man show, called "An Evening With Sholem Aleichem."

Ms. Schlammé will give a program called "Let There Be Love," which includes a selection of songs, poetry and dramatic excerpts. She has performed in opera, night clubs, and on stage as Golda in "Fiddler on the Roof," and as Elmire in "Tartuffe."

Morgan Young is chairman and coordinator of the event.
