This is an exterior view of the Pullicks' greenhouse. Skylights provide the ultraviolet rays needed by growing plants. The Livonia couple wanted the addition to look more like a room than a traditional greenhouse for resale purposes.

A number of small companies have entered the greenhouse market in response to increased public interest. These companies should be checked carefully before making a purchase.

A greenhouse is subject to unusual atmospheric conditions and if not well-engineered, it will deteriorate after a very brief time.

The following established companies have catalogues available on request and some have local agents who will be able to help you in your selection: Aluminex Inc., 2408 Forney, Los Angeles, Calif. 90031; Janco Greenhouses, Dept. OS-6, 10788 Tucker, Beltsville, Md., 20705; Lord and Burnham, Dept. 0111, 2 Main St., Irvington, N.Y., 10533; National Greenhouse Co., Dept. P, P.O. Box 100, Pana, Ill., 62557; and Texas Greenhouse Co., Inc., Dept P, P.O. Box 11219, Ft. Worth, Tex., 76110.
