

Massive search launched to find missing coed

By SHIRLEE IDEN

Parents of a missing University of Michigan co-ed are asking for volunteers to join in a massive search for their 20-year-old daughter on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Gold of Southfield said they need volunteers to join the search and also to babysit so others can help look for the missing woman.

Beverly Gold walked out of her apartment at 835 Division in Ann Arbor on Friday, June 16 and has not been since. The last person to see her was one of her two roommates, Judy Schwartz of Boston.

The U-M junior look with her only her contact lens case, leaving without funds, identification or extra clothing. Beverly is five foot four and weighs 115 pounds. She has long brown hair and hazel eyes and is believed to have been wearing blue jeans, a pink T-shirt and loafers when she left.

She grew up in Southfield attending Stevenson, Birney and Southfield-Lathrup High School before enrolling at U-M.

Despite some media reports that Beverly has been dependent over her failure to find a summer job, her parents said she had no worries or pressures and was planning to prepare to take exams for entrance to law school.

THE WEDNESDAY search will begin at 10 a.m. from the Hill House, 1429 Hill in Ann Arbor. Volunteers will gather before that for briefing.

Carpools will leave from Temple Emanuel in Oak Park at 8:15 a.m. Wednesday to ride to Ann Arbor, Mrs. Gold said.

The volunteers will search the Ann Arbor campus, adjoining neighborhoods and the Arboretum—a large wooded, park-like area where students go to walk, boat or play games like baseball and Frisbee.

"Beverly loved it there," Mrs. Gold said. "She liked to go walking and canoeing."

Judy Greenwald of Oak Park, an organizer of the search, said Ann Arbor Police have been asked for help to search all university buildings which have been closed for the summer.

"We need everyone we can to help us," Mrs. Gold said. "The worst part of this is the uncertainty." Ann Arbor Police said there have been no indications of violence surrounding the woman's disappearance but that the length of time she has been missing is "unusual."

Anyone with any information about Beverly Gold should call the Ann Arbor Police at 1-994-2800.
