New classes ready to go

Norm Stanislawski begins new summer tennis classes the week of July 31 for those who have never played before, for those who have not played in some time, for those with some previous professional instruction and for those with a basic knowledge of the game. Stanislawski is the men's and women's tennis coach at North Farmington High School where he has coached for six years and has had two teams win first place trophies in Northwest Suburban League play. All classes will be taught on the high school courts, sponsored by the Farmington Community Center. Registrations are being taken now by calling the center at 477-8404. One of his classes this summer is made up of Beth Viase, (at left) Kelly Sparrow, Diane Mullen, Lisa Chicouris, Cathie Waidelich, Tulu Avaregan and Nancy Baker.

New nursery school opens fall enrollment

Holy Cross Community Center will house a new nursery school on its grounds at 25225 Middlebelt. It is set to open in the fall with complete preschool and kindergarten programs and day-care facilities.

Applications for enrollment of youngsters in the fall classes at Farmington Hills Nursery School are now being accepted by administrative director Helen Knokkore.

Licensed by the state, the school will accept children from 2½ to 6 years of age.

Fr. Stephen J. Anthony, pastor of the church, said, "The professional staff is highly skilled in the area of child guidance and offers outstanding credentials in understanding, empathy and academic excellence; qualities critical to the meaningful education of youngsters."

EDUCATIONAL director Caroline Benesi and Ms. Konduros will be working through the summer planning learning experiences for the school term.

Ms. Konduros has a broad background of experience, both as an educator and counselor at the elementary and secondary school levels.

She is currently engaged in studies toward a doctorate degree in educational administration at Wayne University, where she earned her bachelor degree and a specialist's certificate. She earned her masters degree from University of Michigan. Registration and inquiries will be taken by calling Marilyn Blunden at 476-3110.
