In the absence of the baby duck's real mama, Laddie is doing a fine job standing in. Janet English's children brought the orphaned duck home and it immediately took a shine to the family collie. "It's the funniest thing I've seen in a while," said Mrs. English. "The duck really thinks the dog is its mother. It follows her everywhere." (Staff photos by Gary Caskey)

Kaufman will seek judgeship

Bernard L. Kaufman of West Bloomfield Township is one of 14 candidates seeking one of three newly created seats on the Oakland Circuit Court bench.

Kaufman, 48, is president of the Detroit firm of Rosenbaum, Bloom, Kaufman, Appel and Moses.

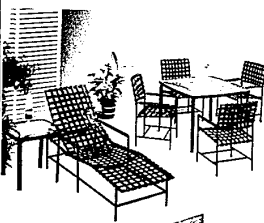

A graduate of Wayne State University's Law School, Kaufman came in second in the 1974 race for a seat on the Michigan Court of Appeals. The race in the Second Judicial District was his first for an elected judicial position.

In 1976 he ran for a vacant seat on the Oakland Circuit Court bench, but again came in second in the general election.

Kaufman was appointed to the International Association of Industrial Accident Boards and Commissions and was appointed an arbitrator of the American Arbitration Association. From 1970 to 1975 he served on the Michigan State Bar's Workman's Compensation Council.

Kaufman is married and has two children.
