

Next year in Jerusalem

Looking forward to Pioneer Women's first convention in Israel are Frieda Leeman, (at left) Marjorie Model, Sylvia Snyder and Esther Zuckler. The women all take key roles in the group's 26th biennial convention, set for November, 1979, in Jerusalem. Mrs. Leeman, of Farmington Hills, is the American national president of the sister organization of Na'amat, which provides educational, vocational and social services for women, children and youth in Israel, while actively participating in American-Jewish community and civic affairs. Headquarters for the Detroit contingent is in Farmington Hills.

The lessons gleaned by your writer will be shared through the year in Down To Earth.

Many of our readers are interested in propagation of their own plants or these they "earn" off a friend. More and more I am hearing that a 10 per cent mix of clover in water is excellent for cutting or for roots, as you divide a plant. This step is to prevent disease.

While buzzing around the country, I have noticed that the most stunning displays of annuals use masses of one color, with perhaps a border of coleus, ageratum or sweet alyssum. A good example of the powerful effect of color massing would be the planting on the west side of the Baldwin Library on
