Items needed for Goodwill sale

One of the most popular features of the annual Antiques Market and Show, sponsored by the Junior Group of League for the Handicapped-Goodwill Industries is the Goodwill Booth, selling the antique furniture, glass, silver, and other items contributed by the public.
The show this year will be held at the Fairlane Manor Nov. 11-13. Proceeds from the sale are used to purchase equipment and to help support rehabilitation and employment programs for handicapped men and women.
Anyone contributing antique items for the show is given a receipt for tax purposes which may be used in the same way as a cash donation when filling a tax return.

As a result of the contribution, the individual receives a benefit and funds are made available to League-Goodwill in helping serve disabled clients.
The public is urged to contribute antique articles by calling the Goodwill public relations department at 954-3300. Items which are sought for resale in the show are wooden furniture pieces (such as chairs), tables and beds, glassware, silver, pewter and other collector items.
League-Goodwill is a comprehensive vocational rehabilitation agency providing evaluation, training, employment, and placement services to handicapped men and women with physical, mental, emotional or social disabilities.
