

Pinocchio's nose just grows and grows when he tells a lie, much to the horror of Jiminy Cricket.

Young boy offers kind words to his donkey after learning the animal must be sold, in "The Small One."

Pinocchio still finds mischief

Walt Disney animated films, both old and new, are currently playing area theaters.

"Pinocchio" is the classic fantasy believed by many to be the most elaborate and dramatically exciting animated feature ever made.

"The Small One" is Walt Disney Productions' first animated featurette in three years and showcases the talents of a whole new generation of Disney artists.

To bring "Pinocchio" to life, more than 750 artists, 80 musicians, 1,500 shades of color and one million drawings were involved.

Based on the internationally famous 19th century children's classic by Carlo Collodi, "Pinocchio" tells the poignant story of a little, wooden puppet who must prove himself worthy of becoming a real boy.

"The Small One" is the heartwarming story of a young boy in ancient Nazareth who is forced to sell his beloved donkey.

Based on a widely read children's Christmas tale by Charles Tazewell, the featurette incorporates three new songs; a symphonic score complete with choral arrangements and colorful backgrounds into its 25-minute running time.
