The fourth annual Plymouth-Canton Volleyball Tournament, co-hosted by Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton High Schools, will be held Saturday, Feb. 3 at the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park, located at the corner of Joy and Canton Center Roads.

Puckster scores 5 goals

Mike Prentice, a hockey player on Sawyer-Fuller Funeral Home's recreation team, scored five goals last Thursday, and one of them was a real landmark—the 4,000th goal in the eight-year history of the Southfield Over 30 Hockey League.

Prentice had two assists to go with his five goals as Sawyer-Fuller Funeral Home's team defeated Northland Holiday Inn, 8-5. John O'Dell, Dick Antonic and Arnie Shapero each added a goal for the winners. Paul Bekala, Larry Dunne, Bob Tsukayama, Lee Fitzpatrick and Gary LaMeier each scored a goal for Holiday Inn.

In another game last Thursday, Northland Heating held on to first place in the eight-team league with a 4-2 win over Sawyer-Fuller Funeral Home. Bob Kiefel scored two goals for Northland, and Jim Lepine and Dennis Smith each added one. Ted Prohrow and Gary Bean tallied for Sawyer-Fuller.

Northland's victory was its 10th this season against three losses and three ties.

Suburban Sports Center, the second-place team with an 8-3-5 record, played to a two-all tie with Midwest Coffee. Ray Brunett and Dave Fay scored for Midwest, while Jim O'Dea and Bud Stefanko provided Suburban's goals.

Roger Penske Chevrolet, with Chuck Drake scoring three goals and Ray Tremblay scoring two, defeated Concourse Camera, 6-3. Al Stewart scored a single goal for Penske, which is in third place with a 9-4-1 record. Bob Hawk, Paul Kezelle and Derrick Reynolds scored a goal apiece for Concourse.

The Over 30 season continues on Thursday (Feb. 1) with four games at the Southfield Civic Center Arena.

Indoor soccer: marathon sport

Indoor soccer can be a marathon sport.

It took a little convincing, but the fact remains:

In a recent indoor Women's Invitational Soccer Tournament hosted at Penn State University, there were no arguments against an exciting competition.

The tournament involved teams from four surrounding states and represented the first of its kind.

Wendy Coyle, the state organizer for the National Women's Soccer Association, drew six adult women's teams, two from New York and two from Virginia, one from Washington, D.C. and one from Pennsylvania.

None of the teams had ever competed seriously indoors before. But outdoors was no option, so we piled into cars during the winter and gingerly maneuvered the six hours of icy roads to University Park, Pa., we wondered what it would be like.

Women's soccer is played six to a side, with a still wide (about 16 feet) though lower (four feet) goal than usual.

We set up a 4-1 formation, one sweeper in front of the goalie, two inner strikers tucking mainly in the offensive half of the court, and two sides optimistically expected to run the full length of the gym constantly.

With stamina at a premium, we and most of the teams actually played some variation of a 2-1-2 ultimately.

The best feature about indoor soccer is that you can play balls off the walls. This gives the effect of having extra players since the wall, depending upon the angle and force of your kick, can be a perfect one-touch passer. With the wall on your side, you can foil defenders.

Coyle, ISC's star striker, has honed this surprise technique to a fine art, ramming the ball hard into the back wall so that it rebounds to her waiting partner smack in front of the startled goalie.

Tidal Basin Blues practices amongst the cherry blossoms in the U.S. capitol and under the smart tutelage of players coach Zena Cook. Little did we know until after we had played them twice, that Basin Blues, its own league champion, had not lost a game in two seasons. Otherwise, we first-season upstarts who practice amongst the broken glass in Central Park, may not have had the confidence to come as close to them as we did, 1-2 on Saturday and 4-5 in the semifinals.
