On The LIBRARY Line

By DENISE MOLL

February holds much in store for patrons of all ages at the Farmington Community Library. From tax help to a Valentine special for the entire family, we're sure you'll find something of interest.

Put it off though we may, we all have to file our tax returns eventually. Free help will be available at the Farmington Branch Library from 7:30-9 p.m. on Feb. 1. Beatrice Nye, a representative from the Internal Revenue Service, will give background information and guidelines for preparing individual returns. Register for this program by calling Barbara Brower at 474-7770.

Our "Using the Library" series continues this month at both branches. At 3 p.m., Feb. 6 the topic "Term Paper Research" will be offered at the Farmington branch library. At the Farmington Hills branch, our general "Using the Library" session will be offered at 10 a.m., Feb. 22.

If you're a reader interested in sharing your response to what you've read, join our adult book discussion group which meets Thursday from 10 a.m. until noon at the Farmington library. On Feb. 8, a discussion of "Encounter with an Angry God," by Carolebeth Laird will take place. The Feb. 22 title will be Anne Tyler's "Searching for Caleb." Limited copies of both books are available at the Farmington branch.

AT 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 13 the Farmington Hills library will present its annual Valentine Family Story Hour featuring songs, media and a short theatrical production of Harry Allard's "Miss Nelson is Missing," starring some of the talented library staff. Register beginning Feb. 5 by calling 553-0300. The program will also be offered at the Farmington branch library at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 15. Register by calling 474-7770.

Registration for our second children's program series will begin Feb. 23. Many of the programs are repeats of the January-February offerings, including storyteller's basket, science for tots, writers in training and monster mash at the Farmington library. Storyteller's basket, science for tots, start with art, the beat goes on with music, stone soup and writers in training will be at the Farmington Hills branch.

New offerings include: Green thumb fun and bulletin board design at the Farmington library and me-shirt t-shirts at the Farmington Hills branch.

Register in person from 9-11 a.m. on Feb. 23. After 11 a.m., telephone registrations will be taken. Farmington and Farmington Hills residents receive preference. For further information call the Farmington Library at 474-7770 or the Farmington Hills library at 553-0300.

IN ADDITION to the programs requiring registration, we also offer programs which are open to all children. February features at the Farmington Hills library include "Magic Musings," films about magic things at 2 p.m., Feb. 5 and "Trip to the Orient," a parent-child activity on Feb. at 10:30 a.m., Feb. 22 both for pre-schoolers and kindergarten.
