

'The Peddler's Parade' jazz opera premieres

The Detroit premiere of a jazz opera, "The Peddler's Parade," will be presented at 8 p.m. Fridays-Sundays every weekend through September at the Grand Circus Exchange, 47 E. Adams, in downtown Detroit.

The opera was written by Detroiters Michael Szymanski and will be performed by Detroiters. "The Peddler's Parade" is a worldly fairy tale that concerns a peddler who becomes involved with the marriage of a king and queen, and thereby saves their kingdom.

The peddler can be described as a type of Everyman concerned with everything and nothing. The importance that he places on life is the supreme experience of living it.

He dares us (characterized as The People within the opera) to examine our own lives and rediscover that which is special and electric in it. He accomplishes these tasks using only a sack filled with relentless rhymes, inkings-of-wisdom and a healthy abundance of nonsense.

Dinner dance benefits Far

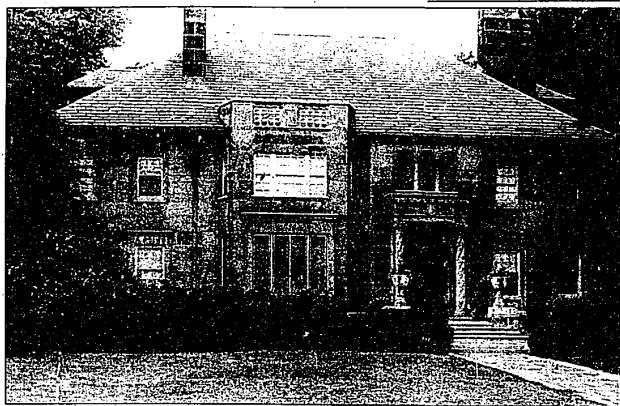

A benefit dinner dance will be sponsored by the Birmingham-Bloomfield Jaycees on behalf of the Far Conservatory of Performing Arts for the Handicapped.

The dinner dance is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 16, at the San Marino Club, located on Big Beaver Road west of John R. in Troy. A family-style full-course banquet includes wine, beer and set-ups.

Dinner begins at 6:30 p.m. For ticket information call 846-3347. On the menu will be a garden fresh relish tray, minestrone soup, fettuccine all'uovo (homemade noodles with meat sauce), top round of beef with mushrooms, oven-roasted chicken with roasted potatoes, Italian sausage, tossed salad with chef's dressing, green beans almondine and creme de menthe parfait.

Entertainment will be provided by the student of the Far Conservatory of Performing Arts. Dance music will be by the Alina Combo.

A Dance?

The elegant Edward M. Fisher house on Boston Boulevard in Detroit will be the location of a September party sponsored by the Detroit Historical Society. The theme "Shall We Dance?" will be carried throughout the home by the music of various groups and soloists. The event is planned for Saturday, Sept. 15, starting at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are available through the society at 833-7934. Proceeds assist the society in matching a National Endowment for the Humanities grant.
