

Texas debut

Ann-Marie Piana of Farmington Hills recently made her debut as one of the 14 showgirls in the Texas Christian University Horned Frog Marching Band in the TCU-Southern Methodist University football game in Fort Worth. Directing the band is James Jacobson (right). The 150-member band will present the halftime show at six home games. Ms. Piana is a junior business major.

Open house to promote fire safety

Farmington Fire Marshal Norm Maddison said today the public is invited to an open house Saturday, Oct. 13, at the Farmington Training Center on Nine Mile west of Farmington road to see a display of fire equipment and life support units.

The open house from 1 to 3 p.m. completes Fire Prevention Week activities in Farmington. Earlier, Maddison made the rounds of all first, second, and third grade classes at Longacre, Flanders, and Our Lady of Sorrows elementary schools as part of the junior fire marshal program.

"The presentation in the classroom emphasizes home fire safety. We can educate parents through the children," Maddison said, describing a home fire safety report each child takes home.

Parents and children complete the questions which deal with smoke detectors, removing clutter from hallways and attics, as well as checking the heating system and electricity in the home. When the children return the completed report to school, they receive a plastic firefighters helmet.

"Everyone is invited to the open house," Maddison said. "There will also be an aerial tower on display from Farmington Hills."

And fire prevention literature will also be available.
