MISSIONARY INTERNSHIP,
Inc. is an interdenominational organization currently under the direction of The Rev. Fred Renich.
Its function, he explains, is to act as a "bridge between the academic and real life"
in the training of young missionaries.

in the Iraining of young missionaries.

The program began as an independent operation and now is operated as a department of the Far Eastern Gospel Crusade.

Rev. Renich pointed out, though, that it is still interchurch and inter-mission. International form the many different mission and the control of th ferent mission agencies.

THEIR STAY with he Internship is sort of a test run for missionary work.

Today's social conditions, the director said, give young people little insight into the demanding, fully committed ille a missionary must face.

Missionary internship, inc. attempts to provide young people with a practical means of developing the traits they will need in mission work. They also get guidance in determining whether they are really suited to the life.

About 15 per cent decide to into other work, ite added.

A quarter of the program's cost is paid by the interns. The rest comes from participating mission agencies and gifts from churches, where laterns work.
