Auction time for Fashion Group coming

The highest bidders at the Fashion Group auction will take home many a fabulous buy on Dec. 2.

That's the date of the "Something for Everyone" Designer Fashion Auction that benefits the scholarship fund of the Detroit Fashion Group and the Detroit Police Athletic League.

In addition to a stunning selection of designer fashions for men and women, the event will offer a variety of non-apparel items. To be held in the Renaissance ballroom at the Detroit Plaza Hotel, the event will begin with a mini-auction of $5 and up mystery gift items, at 1 p.m.

The main event at 2 p.m. will feature designer fashions provided by Detroit-area retailers as well as manufacturers and designers. Local stores who have already anted up include Saks Fifth Avenue, J.L. Hudson, Raz and Sherm Becker, Lingerie, Linda Dresner, Walton Pierce, and Doug Hoffman.

DESIGNERS who have committed include Holly's Harp, Missoni, Cesarani, John Anthony, Oscar de la Renta, and Ralph Lauren. Anthony Muto is expected to make a personal appearance at the auction and pieces from his collection will be put up for bidding.

Jean Marx and Letha Coon are heading the event.

Tickets are $5 advance sale and $7 at the door. They are available from Fashion Group members and the P.A.L. office of the Detroit Police Department.

Among the designer fashions to be up for auction by the Fashion Group will be a glitter-trimmed two-piece outfit from Linda Dresner, a Halston Capelet dress from Margaret Rice and a man's wool tweed suit from Doug Hoffman. Many non-apparel items also will be offered.
