Musician visiting Ann Arbor campus

Dr. Karl Hans Berger, guiding director of the Creative Music Studio (CMS) in Woodstock, N.Y., is in residency in Ann Arbor for three days, through Friday, Nov. 30.

The residency is in cooperation with the University School of Music and Eclipse Jazz. Workshops, lectures and the organization of an orchestra, led by Berger, are taking place.

Also, Berger will perform in a solo concert with piano and vibraphone and then join the workshop orchestra in performance of some of his compositions, at 8 p.m. Nov. 30 in the Pendleton Room.

At CMS Berger established a system of "Basic Practice" that includes a discipline towards improvisational development unique to any other learning institution in the world. With such musical/instructors as Don Cherry, Roscoe Mitchell, Anthony Braxton and Cecil Taylor, as well as many others, these theories and attitudes have allowed many a skilled musician the opportunity to expand horizons freely.

This unique approach toward education is being brought exclusively to the Ann Arbor area through the residency with Berger.

Berger received a Ph.D. in Heidelberg, Germany. In the U.S.A. during the '60s, he founded the Creative Music Studio in 1971.

Tickets can be purchased at the door or at the Michigan Union Box Office. Show times are 8 p.m. Workshops are free and open to the public, musicians and non-musicians alike.
