Area student performs at MSU theater

Laurie Spivack of Farmington Hills performed onstage when Michigan State University's Repertory Dance Company featured the work of guest choreographers at its Jan. 24-26 concert.

Ms. Spivack was among the 12 dancers to perform eight modern, ballet and jazz numbers staged under the auspices of the MSU Department of Theatre.

Included in the concert were dances choreographed by former MSU dancer

Jody Oberfelder, who now lives in New York, and Barbara Banasikowski Smith, company director and MSU faculty member.

Also featured were dances restaged for the company by Myron H. Nadel, a Pittsburgh theatre arts teacher; Gerri Houlihan, artist-in-residence at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee; and Barbara Sullivan, director of the Atlanta Dance Theatre.

The Repertory Dance Company is comprised of career-oriented dancers who are selected by auditioning in ballet, modern and jazz dance forms.

Ms. Spivack, daughter of Edward Spivack and Mrs. Ruth Scheffin, is a senior majoring in dance through MSU's Justin Morrill College.

In addition to performing in three other dance routines, she introduced her first choreographic piece during the concert. The work, called "Flying," represents the motion of wind and birds in flight translated into dance movements.

A strong modern dancer, she is also able to perform ballet and jazz numbers.

Ms. Spivack's previous credits include performances in the Sundown Theatre, "The Good Doctor" and "The Bacchae."

She is a 1975 graduate of Farmington Harrison High School.
