

Jocelyn Krieger

Feverish blush of youth strikes a matron

I couldn't believe it. I left the doctor's office liltily humming "Here's To You, Mrs. Robinson" under my breath. Snowflakes fluttered but appeared more like magnolia blossoms.

It seemed inconceivable that less than two hours earlier I'd dragged my pain-wracked body through the very same doors, never expecting to hear such a diagnosis. Never did I suspect I was about to make medical history.

One thing should have told me not to put too much faith in this medical genius, especially in my first visit. I have to admit, when you're past 40, you're willing to grasp straws in the wind to keep from drowning.

"I THINK YOU'RE not telling me the truth about your age, Mrs. Krieger," the middle-aged doctor began. It seemed to be — at least I wanted it to be — sincere comment.

"I would never think of you as being in your 40s," he continued. "In fact, not even in your 30s." This was too much. Demurely, I pulled the sheet around me. Losing 20 pounds must certainly make a difference, I thought.

"Your tonsils look exactly like a 10-year-old's," he finished.

When he made his final diagnosis, I was willing to forgive him as soon as I looked at the lab request he'd written. He explained he thought his diagnosis highly unlikely because it was unheard of in women over 40. Just to be sure, he'd run a test.

THE LAB TECHNICIAN gave me a knowing grin as she jabbed my arm. Never have I parted so willingly with my blood.

"How do you think this happened?" she boldly inquired.

That's when I thought of Mrs. Robinson. Not that I subscribe to Mrs. Robinson's educational tactics as displayed in "The Graduate." But I could see my husband would probably ask the same question as the lab technician.

Driving home, I began to recollect other times when my medical history hadn't coincided with my peer group.

At 16, I idiotically treated my 9-year-old brother's "acne," smothering each "pimple" with bleemish cream.

We both came down with chicken pox.

At 30, when they say a woman supposedly reaches her sexual peak, I didn't get sexier. I got mumps.

Do you know how much sympathy a 30-year-old married woman, the mother of three children, evokes with the mumps? Zilch.

HOW WAS I GOING to explain this obvious sign of left over youth? Would my husband respond to an aging "Lolita"?

The teenagers! I blamed all the symptoms of my progressive old-age on teenagers. Instead of senility, they'd given me this exotic disease of youth.

The appropriate background music for my homecoming wasn't "Here's To You, Mrs. Robinson." The final theme from the third act of "La Traviata" would have been splendid since I sounded more like a consumptive Violetta, coughing my way into the house. My teenage wit, Franklyn, greeted me.

"HEY, MOM! You don't have the "kissing disease," he smirked. "The doc just called and said your test for mononucleosis was negative. Probably just a 48-hour virus."

I sank my disease-laden body into the nearest chair. The blush of youth was only fever, easily curable with aspirins. The accompanying chill was definitely winter.

I should have known better than to believe in a doctor who looks into the eyes of a sophisticated, mature, worldly woman and compliments her on her tonsils.

JOCELYN KRIEGER is a freelance writer and a former actress in off-Broadway productions. As a singer, she has appeared with the Detroit Concert Band and Detroit Symphony Orchestra. She is currently a teacher of piano and voice, and is married to a tax consultant. Residents of Southfield, they have six children.

Sleeping dry on a cold winter's night

There were four houses at the end of that street in West Rutland, Vt. My father told me that, while he was growing up, 48 children poured in and out of those doors. My grandmother had six of her own and "took in" two more. That meant 40 children lived in the other three houses.

My aunts and uncles, along with my father, were paired up to share double beds. Most rooms had two double beds. The extra beds were for company.

During the long cold winters, the children's bodies kept each other warm at night. My father slept with a brother who was a bed wetter. The child with the problem was not punished or ridiculed.

Of course, his mother asked him to try and not wet the bed, and he certainly knew that she didn't need extra linens to wash by hand. So a system was devised whereby my father, who was very much involved in the situation (he wanted to sleep in a dry bed), would wake up his brother several times during the night and remind him to go to the bathroom.

SIXTY YEARS AGO in West Rutland, the bathroom was occupied by a visiting aunt and uncle.

Sheila Rosen Seitzman

The boys had been told not to fool around at night because their aunt, tired from the long trip, was a light sleeper.

My father woke up his brother, who pulled the tin basin from under the bed. The latent scientific figuring in the brain of this young boy, who would later exhibit mechanical abilities, made him realize that the noise he would make while using the pan might wake up the guests and put him in an embarrassing situation.

He walked over to the window but the frosty glass dissuaded him from venturing outside. Without further deliberation, my uncle put his foot in the basin in order to deflect the noise.

What my uncle didn't know was that either the scraping of the pan as he pulled it out from under the bed or his footsteps to the window had already alerted his aunt to the situation at hand.

BEFITTING THE AWKWARD occasion, she closed her eyes and pretended to be asleep. But the noise she heard was so strangely muffled that she squinted in the dark to see what was happening.

She saw her nephew with his foot in the tin basin and was unable to guess a rational reason for it to be there.

That was the night the aunt decided that this boy must be peculiar. And even though my uncle grew up to become a very successful adult, there was always one aunt who shook her head in dismay every time she saw him.

The writer, a resident of Orchard Lake, was born and raised in New York City. She is a speech pathologist and has worked in public schools, hospitals and rehabilitation clinics and has had a private practice. She is the mother of three daughters and is married to a patent attorney. 1980 by Sheila Seitzman their room was occupied by a visiting aunt and uncle.

The boys had been told not to fool around at night because their aunt, tired from the long trip, was a light sleeper.

My father woke up his brother, who pulled the tin basin from under the bed. The latent scientific figuring in the brain of this young boy, who would later exhibit mechanical abilities, made him realize that the noise he would make while using the pan might wake up the guests and put him in an embarrassing situation.

He walked over to the window but the frosty glass dissuaded him from venturing outside. Without further deliberation, my uncle put his foot in the basin in order to deflect the noise.

What my uncle didn't know was that either the scraping of the pan as he pulled it out from under the bed or his footsteps to the window had already alerted his aunt to the situation at hand.

NOTICE
EVOLA MUSIC is having their 4th Annual 10 HOUR SALE
Saturday, February 9
10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

SAVE UP TO 50% AND MORE ON PIANOS AND ORGANS

Sensational Savings on Close-outs, Demonstrators, Trade-ins and a limited number of Special Purchases

- LOWREY • HAMMOND • BALDWIN
- THOMAS • WURLITZER • CHICKERING
- STORY & CLARK

SAT. ONLY - BUY NOW AND SAVE

EVOLA MUSIC

BLOOMFIELD HILLS 334-0566
DRAYTON PLAINS 4877 Dixie Hwy. (Next to Thomas Furniture) 674-0433
Open Evenings Till 9 Wed. • Sat. Till 5:30

Discover... a better way to buy better furniture.

DOBBS

877 14 Mile Road, TROY
14791 Eureka, SOUTHGATE
34150 Gratiot (at 14 Mile)
9136 Telegraph (at 7 Mile)

Holidome Fun Center

"FAMILY FANTASY" WEEKEND PACKAGE

At the Farmington Hills Holiday Inn, we love to see kids and couples and crowds of fun-loving folks having a good time. That's why we're offering a special weekend package for fun-lovers of all shapes and sizes to come and join the fun in our 11,000-sq.-ft. Holidome Fun Center. Swimming pool, whirlpool, putting greens, pool table, ping pong tables, shuffleboard, an Arcade of pinball and electronic games, and Jimmy's cafe — serving refreshments pool-side. Plus, Inn guests are only minutes away from skiing, ice skating, roller skating, racquetball, Twelve Oaks Mall and more.

FIRST NIGHT - $40; SECOND NIGHT - $35
...per room; kids under 18 share parents' room free. (Maximum - 4 persons/room.) Full use of Holidome facilities. Advance reservations required. Offer good thru June 1, 1980.

28123 W. Ten Mile Road Farmington Hills, MI 48024 (At Grand River and I-96) 313-471-4000 operated by Adel Management Co. under license

Winter Sale

Chairs from $69

Tables from $189

scan design

bransch interiors, inc.

33"x53", opens to 33"x90"
36"x56", opens to 36"x98"
39"x59", opens to 39"x104"

Main Showroom:
West Bloomfield
3325 Orchard Lake Rd.
Keego Harbor, MI 48033
626-0031

Troy
1061 E. Long Lake Rd.
Troy, MI 48098
528-9050

Store Hours:
Mon., Thurs., Fri. 10:00-9:00, Tues., Sat. 10:00-5:30, Sunday 12:00-5:00. Closed Wednesday.
Interior Design Service Available at Main Showroom Only.

Zip Out Leathers! You'll want this genuine leather jacket through all the seasons. There's a length, color and several styles in several colors. Size 48 and 50 add $10 more.

$108

2 & 3 Piece Suits
Gleam and Suede Knit suits, the ultimate in elegance with a beautiful hand tailored in rich fashion shades. A magnificent garment that you'll find elsewhere at $135 and more.

$48
2 for $92

JACK'S FACTORY OUTLET
WHOLESALE MEN'S WEAR 335-8277
MIRACLE HILL SHOPPING CENTER
TELEGRAPH NORTH OF SQUARE LAKE ROAD
AT W 104, THF 108, SAT 107, SUN 125