

When Sue and Bruce Wilson decided to update their images for spring, they turned to Anna, where makeup artist Susan Hamilton showed them ways to enhance already attractive features.

Her biggest fear, Sue said, was wondering if they would like their updated appearance. They did.

Verdict: 'When pampering -- always go first class'

Franklin residents Sue and Bruce Wilson had the Renaissance Club buzzing with interest as the stunning couple moved about with gleaming hair and bronzed, glowing faces.

"These people are the two of you are out-of-town celebrities," some of the Wilsons' friends said. "You two sure are knockouts!"

Enhancing already attractive appearances began when Sue and Bruce decided they wanted an updated look for spring. Between a trip to Rio de Janeiro and a weekend at the Otsego Ski Club, they decided to sandwich in an afternoon at Anna's in the Claymore Building near the corner of Northwestern and Franklin Roads in Southfield.

Since the couple live in neighboring Franklin Village, they only had to venture a mile or so down the road to Anna's unique establishment, which is more like a private apartment than a beauty salon.

Careful scheduling gave the busy couple the sole attention of Anna, her assistant, Jane, and makeup artist Susan Hamilton, who planned an afternoon of elegant pampering.

Like most women, Sue is familiar with beauty salons. She said the thing she dislikes most about her trips to the salon is the nagging wish, "I hope Bruce likes it."

"Now," she said at Anna's, "he understands what it's all about."

Wilson, like most men, admits he had never before set foot inside a beauty salon. An attorney who has gained the reputation of being a leading society divorce attorney, Wilson, 46, stands 6-foot-2 in stocking feet.

The epitome of the "macho man" when he's not dominating converses, he puts his big sleek car away and drives a Jeep. Or he hops into his Beachcraft Bonanza and flies off on a jaunt to hunt, fish, ski, scuba dive or make a quick visit to his house in Florida.

The last place friends and associates would expect to see him would be luxuriating in the care of beauty experts. At the start, Bruce announced that if his new look turned out to be a disaster, he would jump into his airplane and fly away.

At the end of the session, he still had flight on his mind.

"You look like you are right out of New York," he said to his wife. "I'm taking you out to dinner tonight. As a matter of fact, how about flying to New York?"

"I LOVE IT!" said the fiery and creative Anna when she stood back to survey her art work.

Everybody else "loved it" too. Especially Sue Wilson, who said, "It's been wonderful having Bruce here by my side instead of on the phone. All his friends know he is a telephone addict," she added.

"I feel good," was Bruce's evaluation. His blue gingham suit added even more life to his silver hair and bronzed face.

"This has been a fun afternoon. I feel like I have been on vacation for a week," he said as he headed for the telephone to tell their children he would pick up a pizza for dinner.

"I'm taking your beautiful mom out tonight," he told Stephen and Wendy.

"THE OLDER I get, the more I want to pamper myself," Sue said while sipping a cup of coffee elegantly served in dainty china.

"This is first class," agreed Bruce, who was served lunch and accompanying wine on a bamboo tray. "I always say when you're going pampering go first class," he declared.

My hair has always been a problem," he said. "Every time I get out of the shower or go swimming I have to find something to put on my hair to control it. Or when I get out of the airplane, my hair is messy from the headphones."

You have to wash your hair," counseled Anna. But gray hair is simply a Wilson type hair, she said.

She applied a special hair product to bring out the natural sheen. She proceeded to apply an herbal treatment to remove a yellowness caused by body acid.

I'm getting rid of the basic styling you have," she said as she gave her hair a sculptured look to balance the shape of her head.

Now all you have to do is run a comb through it or smooth it back with your hand. You won't need hair spray to keep it down.

Skin care, Anna told Bruce, should include daily moisturizing and an application of bronzing lotion to highlight the cheek bones.

Sue Wilson's shoulder-length hair was stripped to remove previous styling and return her natural hair color, which was then highlighted with gold.

The result was gleaming and gorgeous.

Her makeup was much more complicated than her husband's and included soft layered shadowing of the eyes and a bright gleaming lipstick.

Sue said to feel at ease during the session, Bruce, however, was somewhat silent about the amount of eye makeup.

Bruce's other half, Anna, had Susan Hamilton to work.

She is a beautiful woman who puts together the youngest looks, he said. The makeup gives her the finished look of the European and New York women.

Come back in six weeks," said Anna. "I'll see what Anna's the Wilsons are like then."

"I love it," Sue said after the session. "We look like movie stars."

Sue Wilson wasn't too sure that he really liked all the makeup. But husband Bruce was so delighted that he called their children to tell them that he was taking their mother out to dinner.
