

Barnstormers to celebrate 50 years in the air

By CRAIG PIECHURA

It must've been a hardy bunch back in 1929 that barnstormed the state in the first Michigan Air Tour.

Now, 50 years later, Michigan pilots are celebrating that aerial anniversary with a 1979 Commemorative Michigan Air Tour June 11-15.

They will visit 68 cities throughout the state to celebrate commercial and recreational flying.

Many antique planes will fly in the event, including an old open-cockpit Stearman biplane. In addition, some of the pilots who flew 50 years ago will be participating in the event as co-pilots.

Robert Lyons of Lathrup Village is chairman of the '79 Michigan Aeronautics Commission (MAC) air tour. He said the event is open to all 17,000 pilots in the state.

Fifty persons, half the allowable number, have already made reservations to participate in the air tour.

During a chat 3,000 feet above the Prudential Town Center in Southfield, Lyons said the air tour is a friendly excursion, not a race or a derby.

"It's a chance for the little guy, the weekend flyer, to participate in a bit of history," Lyons said.

Lyons and Gini Sutherland of Birmingham were two of the first people to sign up.

"We'll be visiting 68 cities, give a plaque to the director of each airport and visit with the local pilots who come down to see the aircraft," Lyons said. It's quite an energetic tour.

Mrs. Sutherland will share the flying with her husband, Neal. They own a Cherokee 180, while Lyons pilots a bigger, high-performance Beechcraft Bonanza.

Mrs. Sutherland is active in an organization for women pilots called "The 99s." She said the group got that name because there were 99 women pilots around when the group formed in 1928.

The 99s are spearheading a drive to teach private pilots' spouses how to land a plane in an emergency. The training is for people who often fly as a passenger in a private plane but aren't licensed pilots themselves.

Lyons has been flying since the service in World War II, but he will be far from an "old-timer" in the air tour.

Mary Creason, MAC coordinator, said two people who flew in the 1929 tour, Mary Von Mach and Talbert Abrams, have signed up as co-pilots.

A number of antique airplanes will travel around the state. Among them will be the open-cockpit Stearman Bi-plane, piloted by Bill Barber of Ann Arbor, a North Central Airlines representative.

Also scheduled to fly is a 1941 Aerona Chief, a two-seater; a 1946 Ercoupe; a Detroit-made Stinson that is judged to be 40 years old; a 1947 Cessna; a Porterfield airplane and a Bearwing Sportster, both dating back to 1939; and a replica of Charles Lindbergh's Ryan monoplane, the Spirit of St. Louis, entered in the air tour by the Experimental Aircraft Association.

Ms. Creason said she is negotiating with United Airlines to see if they'll bring in their first jet mail airplane, the Swallow.

Local pilots already signed up for the five-day excursion that stops in Grand Rapids, Mackinaw Island, Marquette, Saginaw and Lansing on subsequent nights are: Marle Frame of Troy; Michael McGough of Southfield; Charles Hoke of Bloomfield Hills; Robert Eitelre and Mark Wayne of Southfield; Bill Brown of Canton Township and Dr. J.O. Sullivan of Plymouth.

ENTRY FEE for the tour is $35 for the pilot and aircraft and $20 per passenger. The fee covers membership in the non-profit MAC 50th anniversary Association, costs of conducting the tour and banquet expenses. It does not cover flight costs.

Lyons will accept applicants until 100 are received. Entry by sending back with a letter listing the type of aircraft you'll be piloting, the 'N' number of the aircraft, its cruising speed and the number of passengers to: Dr. Robert Lyons, Air Tour Committee, c/o Michigan Aeronautics Commission, Capital City Airport, Lansing, Mich. 48906.

Pilots and passengers will follow one of three different routes but rendezvous at the same city each evening. All entrants will depart June 11 from Pontiac Airport — the state's busiest air terminal, including Metropolitan.

The vacation commemoration will terminate at Lansing's Capital City Airport on June 15, where a banquet will honor James Ramsey, retiring director of the Michigan Aeronautics Commission.

Psych student authors work

A Northern Michigan University (NMU) student from Farmington Hills presented a paper to the Michigan Academy of Science, Arts and Letters Conference recently in Grand Rapids along with several other students and professors from NMU in Marquette.

Cynthia Haight co-authored the paper with three other NMU students entitled "Effects of Carriage Behavior and Attire on Male Helping Behavior."

"It's a matter of great pride that our students will actually be presenting papers which they helped author," said Dr. Robert Glenn, academic vice president and provost at NMU.

"This reflects not only on the good leadership of our faculty, but also on the quality of education at Northern."

Ms. Haight, a senior majoring in psychology, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Haight.

Under hand-fitted solid cherry grilles, finest crowned glass is used in the doors. Imported English veneer panels are framed in mahogany with maple rails.

Heritage 88

Look out with lot's of files, drawers and secret compartments, slides forward and drops level for writing cases. Inside, a numbered brass identification plate.

Presenting the first limited edition
Heritage Heirloom:
Numbered, registered and absolutely magnificent.

When yesterday's heirlooms were produced, the craftsmen of the time labored to create a few furniture masterpieces. Here, a fine furniture maker of present day renews centuries classic standards of quality and workmanship to initiate a series of limited editions, appropriately called Heirloom.

The first is the magnificent secretary bookcase illustrated. Rich with inlays and carving, it is a blend of some of the world's precious woods: boxwood, imported English yew, mahogany, maple and cherry. Finest crowned glass is used in the grille doors. Eleven brass locks secure doors and drawers. The final touch is a clear, lightly distressed, almost natural hand-tubed finish.

Only 275 of these superb cases will ever be produced, each to be numbered and registered in the name of the original owner. We proudly offer one of them for your personal inspection.

CHIROPRACTORS SEEK RESEARCH VOLUNTEERS

The International Pain Control Institute is presently engaged in what is the most extensive research program ever undertaken by the chiropractic profession. This research is directed toward determining the relationship between health problems and spinal misalignments and utilizes a screening process called Contour Analysis.

Volunteers are being sought for screening. Contour Analysis enables taking a three-dimensional picture (called Moire photography) of the topography of the surface of the spine to detect spinal stress deviations. This analysis will be correlated with leg deficiency, postural asymmetry, and levels of spinal tenderness. An analysis of this type can reveal such things as normal and abnormal stress patterns, spinal curvature, muscle spasms, muscle imbalance, spinal distortions, and scoliosis. A consultation and report of findings will be given to all participants.

This is a public service program for participating volunteers. The doctors are contributing their time, services, and facilities for the program. Anyone wishing to be a volunteer may telephone participating doctors directly for information or an appointment.
