

Sun turns fair weather friend for Kenbrook's festival

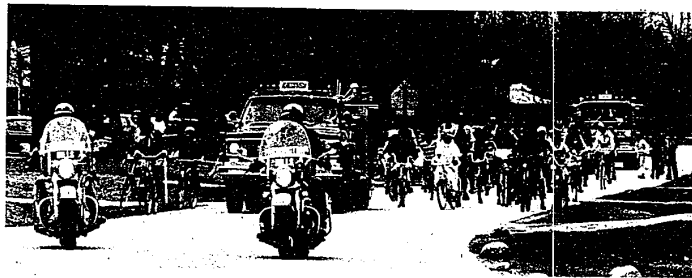

Intense concentration shows on the face of Mari Bockrath, 7, as she tries to send dunk tank denizen Herb Meyer into the deep. That's

Kenbrook Elementary School boosters turned out last Sunday for a little fun, a little

Parading through the streets of Kenbrook subdivisions, friends of the elementary school show their support.

Splash, splash, he isn't taking a bath but Herm Meyers saw a lot of water go over the edge of his dunk tank on Sunday afternoon.

THE INSIDE * ANGLE

PSSST, YOU WANNA DIRTY PICTURE? Do you have a dirty picture? The Farmington Beautification Commission is on the look out for drawings, paintings, sketches and photos of areas in the community which are eyesores. Have a picture of a pile of dirt that has been bothering the daylight out of you? Send it with your name, phone number and address to: Dirty Picture Contest, Farmington City Hall, 23600 Liberty, Farmington 48024. Photos should be kept to a maximum size of 11x14 inches. Deadline is May 14. Contestants must be 18 or older. Winners will be announced and prizes awarded during the commission's annual Spring Flower and Shrub Sale on May 18-19 in the Farmington Downtown Shopping Center. Winning pictures will be displayed in Farmington City Hall and the Farmington Community Library. So, don't just sit there, send some dirt to city hall.

ARTS AND CRAFTS FANS can scout over to the Senior Citizens Arts and Craft Sales from 1:30-3 p.m. on May 30 in the Gathering Place, Mercy Center, Eleven Mile near Middlebelt. Angles is beggled by the thought of the years of experience that goes into some projects as well as the hours of time and patience involved.

HEY, HEY Sister Ignatius does it again. The Our Lady of Mercy High School art teacher again had the largest number of students who were national winners in this year's Scholastic Art program contest. The Super Teacher and her students brought home 12 awards from the national contest. (They must know all the angles.)

WENDY GOUDINE of Farmington is continuing a family tradition when she plays with the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association's Honors Orchestra at the 1979 Youth Arts Festival. The 15-year-old violinist has been studying music since she was 9. She follows in her grandfather's footsteps. He began playing violin when he was 8. When her grandfather, Julius Resetar, died, Ms. Goudine decided to carry out her promise to him to become an outstanding musician. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Goudine of 21700 Randal in Farmington was among 100 musicians who were chosen from 3,000 entries for the band. Besides performing at the festival, the orchestra will work with a Michigan composer and spend an overnight stay on the Central Michigan University campus. This is made possible by a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts.

THE NORTHWESTERN GARDEN CLUB OF Detroit will conduct its 50th anniversary home placement standard flower show with an open garden at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L.A. Hough, 25255 Wavercross, near Ten Mile between Telegraph and Inkster Road in Southfield. Open garden will be on June 8 at 2 p.m. and June 9 from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. The public is invited. There is free admission.

FREE PRESCHOOL VISION SCREENING is available at Oakland County Health Division, 27724 Greenfield Rd., Southfield. Preschoolers can have their eyes checked from 9-11 a.m. on May 22. For further information, call 424-7070.

IT'S GARAGE SALE TIME AGAIN. and Licolshire East subdivision is conducting its third annual foray into the world of backyard commerce. But this time there's a twist to the task of preparing signs attracting roving garage sale fans to the site. The Fame-Fortune-Fun contest is designed to motivate creativity among the troops. Fame will come in the form of Farmington Observer editor Steve Barnaby (LA's boss) who will help past president of the subdivision Ray Okonski pick the winning signs at 10 a.m. on May 19. Winners will collect a small (very small) fortune. The first prize is $15, second is $10 and third place is $5. Remember, third place, nice guys finish last. The contest is open to sub residents of all ages. Just about any material of any size shape or form is acceptable. Signs that move, weave, too, whistle, spin, bounce or whatever are welcome. The garage sale these signs will advertise will be conducted on May 26 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. LA figures even if it doesn't buy anything, it will cruise by to take a look at a sign that moves, weaves, toots, whistles and whatever.

BOYSVILLE is conducting a fund-raising drive from now until July to raise money to support its main home in Clinton and its group homes in Detroit, Ecorse, Saginaw and Alpena. The organization eventually hopes to have a group home for troubled boys in Oakland County. For further information, call Boysville's Office of Community Resources in Farmington Hills at 478-6717.

A TIP OF THE ANGLES' topper to Nate Harris, owner of Drakeshire Lanes. For four years, Harris has been sponsoring and setting up a bowling banquet for the senior citizens' league. At 1 p.m. on May 8 about 72 bowling seniors stopped by to enjoy a dinner provided by Harris and pick up their trophies.

WANT TO BEEF AT the Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency? Maybe compliment them? Attend a public hearing from 2-4 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. on May 15 in St. Alexander's Catholic Church, 27855 Shawwassee.

OLHSA conducts the hearings every three years to determine what programs should be planned. For the past three years the agency has had the following priorities: health, education, employment, transportation, energy and housing with emphasis on senior citizens. Homebound citizens can write about their concerns and send their letters to Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency Public Hearings, 196 Oakland, Pontiac 48058.
