The Warner Mansion, one of the most beautiful homes in the Farmington area, was the home of Fred Warner, Michigan's governor at the turn of the century.

Historical homes abound

Farmington landmarks

Visitors to Farmington and Farmington Hills during the Founders Festival are in for some surprises. Those here for the first time may be unaware of the history, charm and heritage of the communities.

After the tents and ferris wheels have been packed away and the last notes of band music have faded, newcomers may want to return for another, quieter look at the area.

Our suggestions are for a walking or driving tour with stops along the way for shopping and refreshments.

1) Park your car in the area directly behind the stores on the southeast corner of (Continued on page 23)
