

For These Things Let Us Give Thanks-

That while almost every nation in world is torn by war and dissension, either within or without her borders, we are at peace. That we are working out our domestic and foreign problems by arbitration and consultation. That we have enough and to spare to the needy and plague ridden everywhere. That prosperity has never really forsaken us and that she promises to be more largely ours than ever before—if we pursue her with diligence cooperation and faith. For these things let us give thanks.
