NEW KEROSENE (Coal Oil) LIGHT

Beats Electric and Gasoline.
Five times as efficient as the best run-of-the-mill open flame lamps (such as Rayo, B. & H., etc.), costs only about one cent to operate six hours. Feeds fuel through wick, lights and is put out just like your old lamp. The new improved
Aladdin
Mantle Lamp
produces a strong, white light from common kerosene (coal oil) without introducing any new or complicated features. No noise, no odor, no smoke. So far ahead of all other oil lamps that the manufacturers offer $1000 Reward to any person who can show them an oil lamp its equal. A trial will cost you nothing. We let you know when you need a demonstration.

This Man Knows What He Is Talking About

Alfred Vivian, dean of the Ohio College of Agriculture, said in an interview a few days ago: "Country communities need their own newspapers just as they need their own churches, schools and banks. Unless personal convenience is placed above community concern, I think it could be shown that a community needs a home newspaper even more than it needs telephones. Telephones are a convenient means of communication between individual, but every one, from the rich man on the hill to the poor man in the roadside cottage can hear the voice of the newspaper and be benefited. Nothing goes further towards unifying a neighborhood than a good weekly or semi-weekly paper. American communities have always had such papers—no other nation has anything like them. And because we are used to them, we undervalue them."

If you are not taking your home paper you will be given an opportunity to get a trial subscription for FOUR MONTHS for only 35 Cents. We will send The Enterprise to any address to NEW subscribers in Wayne or Oakland counties until May 1st, for 3 Cents.

If your neighbors are not taking their home paper will you not urge them to do so and call their attention to this special offer?
