Englishmen Husbands.

In Lancashire, England, where both husbands and wives work in the mills, the husband does most of the housework than perhaps any other husband in the world. Most of the men can make aged and prepare a meal better than the wives can.

Cinder's Value in Road Building.

Cinders have been found useful in England road making for improving clay of the sub-base of the road rising to the surface.

Didn't Know.

Vicar (at village church)—Miss Jones will sing again.—"I cannot tell you why!"—Editorial, Scotsman.

Babylon Had Woman's College.

In an ancient Babylon province there have been discovered records on clay tablets belonging to the period of about 2300 B. C. showing that a woman's "college" or "university" had been established in a suburb of the city called Bursu, and that women had equal rights with men in commercial, property and political affairs.

The First Strikes.

Certain popular movements in the Middle ages bear resemblance to strikes such as the disturbances in England in the second half of the fourteenth century.

More like the modern strikes were the contests between different guild organizations between journeymen and guildsmen, in both English and continental towns.

History tells of the riots among woolen workers in Florence during the time of the Medici. But as a social problem, as a part of the industrial system, strikes belong to the Nineteenth and Twentieth centuries.

Character Told by the Eye.

All men of genius are said to have clear, slow-moving, bright eyes. This is the eye which indicates mental ability of some kind.

THE DETROIT EDISON CO.

LOCAL NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Jefferson spent from Friday until Tuesday in the northern part of the state. Mr. and Mrs. Charles White, who were married recently, kept house for them during their absence. After which they left for their new home on the Thirteen-Mile road.

Do not forget that the library is open Tuesday afternoon and Saturday afternoon, but will not be open Saturday evening. Several new books have been added, among them. To the Last Man, by Zane Gray, and The Master of Man, by Hall Caine.

WORLD'S DEBT TO THE MOON

Or is One of the Most Dependable of Utilities, and the True Friend of Lovers.

As an overhead system of lighting, the moon is one of the most dependable of public utilities.

It rises and sets like the village loafer and decreases the working schedule of a watch.

If it were charged for by the kilowatt, hour, or the cubic centimeter, it would cost a lot of jack to become engaged.

The theory that the moon was made of green cheese gained some credence in the past, but has since been proved erroneous by able astronomers with highly developed olfactory centers.

The moon makes an old man wish he was twenty and a young man wish he had two sets of arms.

It softens the heart, tongues, head and any tendency toward verbal abuse. Statements are made in the moonlight that even a police court lawyer wouldn't try to prove.

Before marriage a man believes that a dog barks at the moon as a tribute to the splendor of the orb at night.

After marriage he learns the real motive.

A combination of limpid eyes, lambent beams and placid lake will make even a deacon swallow the Adam's apple 40 times in succession and feel capable of playing an oboe.

It makes them all edible.

Lincoln got his education by the light of the fireflies.

Countless savants have gained their knowledge slaving away with the midnight oil.

Many have burrowed into great tombs by the sputtering flame of the gas jet.

But the real wise birds—the guys who are hep and jerry—learned most of their lessons in the moonlight—Judge.
