PLAY SQUARE

There is a postal ruling, effective in all postoffices in this country, which provides that if a man takes a paper from the postoffice he is responsible for the payment of a subscription. Uncle Sam presumes that if anything is worth paying for it is worth paying for. Now and then we have a paper refused at the postoffice. When this is done at the end of a subscription, and the subscriber no longer cares for the paper, all well and good. But frequently papers are unceremoniously stopped, simply because the man taking it wants to get out of paying that which is due on it, and it is his own fault. The government views it, that as the government has a certain attempt to defraud. If you want your paper stopped the proper method is to pay up to date and notify the editor to cancel your subscription. If you order the postmaster to stop the paper, before you are sure that it has been paid up to the time you order it stopped, you are practicing a mean branched dishonesty, and one that your Uncle Sam has placed his stamp of disapproval upon. Be fair with the editor who is trying to better conditions in your home town and community. If you really feel that you are financially unable to spare the few cents a month that the paper costs, tell him so and he will gladly carry you along and keep you in his good graces. But don't stoop to little methods, and don't lose the friendship of a man who is trying to better your surroundings by refusing a paper after you have been taking it from the office and reading it, or by declaring you never ordered it in the first place. There is but one good way to treat a matter like this. And that is to be square. Oxford Leader.

ADVERTISING GIVEN BOOST BY MARSHALL FIELD

In a statement made last week by G. R. Schaffer of the great department store of Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, Schaffer said:

"Good advertising is printed salesmanship. It costs money—but figured per prospect it is dirt cheap. Advertising should not be used as a medicine. It should not be used as a food. It will not permanently offset poor merchandise or poor service. It will not build confidence or prestige unless it is founded on dependability in your goods and integrity in your business, the projected personality of your business. It should represent you just as faithfully and just as efficiently as a star salesman. It should tell story of your merchandise accurately and enthusiastically.

"We are strong believers in advertising and the bulk of it goes into the newspapers. We have tried every kind of honest advertising—and never yet have we found anything to equal newspaper advertising."

"DEAD LETTER" MAIL HEAVY

Few Realize How Much Correspondence Can Never Be Carried to Its Proper Destination.

You may take pride in your little 20 by 100-foot lot. It may have looked pretty big to you when you laid out your hard-earned cash for it. Just imagine that lot is covered with letters, not the unfolded letters, but just as they are dropped in the mail box. That would look like a lot of mail, wouldn't it?

Now, double the size of the lot, cover it up with letters, placed so closely together that not as much as one spear of grass could show between. Keep the process up, in your mind, of course, until you have covered 1,000 such lots, or the whole of a fair-sized town with letters. There would then be some 3,058,333 square feet efficiently covered by mail.

Imagine that on every single piece of this mail there is a mistake of some sort in the address.

By this time you will begin to get some idea of the volume of business done by Uncle Sam's dead letter office. The amounts given are not for the history of the service, however. They are for only one year, the last fiscal year. During the 12 months there were 10,000,000 letters returned to the dead-letter office through carelessness in addresses.

You Auto Know

That after the oil is drained from the crank-case, an operation which should be attended to every thousand miles or so, about half a gallon of kerosene should be poured in and the engine run for a minute or less, so that the kerosene may be thoroughly circulated through the lubricating system. This will completely clean the old and worn-out or thinned oil and make it easy for the new supply to function properly.

After the engine has been run, the kerosene which guards the oil pump removed, washed in kerosene and replaced and the splash pans under the connecting rods wiped off. Finally, after the entire interior of the engine has received its internal bath, the crank-case should be filled with fresh oil of the proper grade. If this is done at proper intervals, there will be few if any lubricating troubles and, while it is a messy job, the operation is well worth while, because even slight damage to the mechanism is likely to cost a good deal more than fresh oil and the expense of putting it in. CARE FOR UNIVERSAL JOINT

It Does Great Amount of Work and Must Be Lubricated Properly to Stand Strain.

The universal joint should never be neglected because it is not easy of access. It does a terrific amount of work, and must be lubricated properly to stand the strain and also transmit power without absorbing a great deal of it through friction. As it begins to wear it develops a peculiar thump, which gets worse very rapidly.

Spark Plug Cover

Extra spark plugs may be protected from breakage by inserting them in a section of rubber hose. End of hose should be closed with a bit of waste to prevent the plug from working out.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

Tires wear down fast if wheels are misaligned.

Never change a single ball in a bearing. Renew them all.

Correct wheel alignment saves tire wear and should not be neglected.

If the storage battery is overcharged keep the headlights burning by day.

To polish headlight reflectors, rub lightly with a soft wet cloth and a chamolix.

Brakes should be so adjusted that the car can be brought to a stop with out grabbing.

Inspect wheels carefully and note any damage. Do they run true? Are the flange nuts tight?

The seat of honor of an automobile is the one next to the operator, if the car is driven by the owner.

When you have a puncture at night and the flashlight plays out, take the battery apart and place the bottom cell on top. Then you will have light enough to finish the work and go on your way.
