Menu for the first day is gazpacho, chicken salimbocca, a vegetable, tea or coffee.

The luncheons will run "about $4," the women said. Desserts will be available for an additional cost.

On Thursday, April 24, cheese puffs, tossed salad and ice cream sundaes will be served.

Menus for subsequent Thursdays will be posted in advance in the center. The creators of the series are both talented cooks as well as popular teachers and workshop leaders at the center.

Their most recent success, an Easter brunch, drew a capacity crowd, in spite of a snowstorm that coincided with their workshop.
