Miniatures created in workshop series

"Miniature flowers and bread dough items" offers a hobby to furnish a doll house or small rooms. The workshop headed by Stella Semczuk runs for four Saturdays, from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. beginning May 3 in Farmington Community Center. The instructor at Greenfield Village will teach the craft of making a mixed bouquet of flowers, fruits, vegetables and plants from a mixture of bread, white glue and hand lotion. Registration is necessary by calling the center, 477-8104.

Jennifer Roberts takes theater scholarship

Jennifer Roberts, a Farmington Hills resident and a member of Family Players has won a scholarship awarded by Community Theatre Association of Michigan (CTAM). The 20-year-old was critiqued and primed for the audition, held in Midland's Center for the Arts by Sally Sawyer, director for Family Players. The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Roberts and a graduate of North Farmington High School, Ms. Roberts is now in her sophomore year at Wayne State University, majoring in theatre. Her freshman year was spent at Calvin College where she appeared in "Tartuffe" and last summer she was a member of Hope Repertory Theatre, in Holland, where she was seen as Filla in "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum."

She is presently appearing in "Pippin" which runs for two weekends at the Bonstelle. Ms. Roberts' win is considered — another win for Family — Players this year. Early this spring two of its members took 'best supporting actor and actress awards' in the Puray Festival.

Conrad Bird of American Academy of Dramatic Arts in Flint and Chancy Miller from CTAM.

Flutist gets scholarship

Flutist Paula Ross was overall winner when Harrison High School Band and Orchestra Boosters staged its annual scholarship competition this spring. Miss Ross, who performed Fantaisie by George-Hue in the competition, will receive her award along with eight finalists during Harrison's Appreciation Music Banquet, set for Wednesday, May 14. Teens who were finalists in the competition are Allison Fish, Janet Kastura, David Londa, Jaisy Mead, Sue Notestine, Sandy Oswald and Tim Reid. The competition was chaired by Anne Kastura, vice president of the Boosters.

Kendallarks concert given for mall shoppers

Kendallarks, the three-part women's chorus based in Farmington Hills performs again for Twelve Oaks Mall shoppers in the center mall at 7 and 8 p.m. Tuesday, May 6. Known for bringing 'fun music' under the direction of Jim Whitten, the program this time around includes "Everything is Beautiful," "I Write the Songs," "Applause" and "Hallelujah." Something for everybody from sounds from the 40s to contemporary tunes is the Kendallark's goal. "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy" and "Crazy Rhythm" will be performed as specialty acts for the spring shoppers. Meanwhile, rehearsals are underway for spring shows and the Kendallarks' standing place on the "Summer in the Park" series sponsored by the Farmington Area Arts Council in cooperation with Michigan Council for the Arts. Kendallarks are available for community service concerts. Interested groups may contact Sara Woolard, 553-0182.
