

A PLACE TO BE ME

Randy Gianetti, Mychelle Koenig and David Twentine (from left) will star in production of "A Place To Be Me."

Group to perform for benefit

Adventures In Theatre (AIT), previously known as Albion Productions, will give a benefit performance at the newly refurbished Marygrove Campus Theatre at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. The company is from Southfield.

This benefit will help to finance theater performances in those schools where limited funds would otherwise deprive students of the theater experience.

This performance of the original musical play, "A Place To Be Me" by Kay Britten, marks the culmination of a 10-week tour in which the company has given 75 performances to approximately 55,000 young people and adults throughout Michigan. In several schools in the Upper Peninsula the company played to audiences that had never before seen a live theatre performance.

AIT was founded in 1976 by Kay Britten and Sally Sanfield as a professional touring theater company for young people and family audiences. In March the company appeared in Showcase '80, in Syracuse, N.Y., as one of 16 professional companies chosen from over 50 companies from the United States and Canada.

"A Place To Be Me" has been enthusiastically received by students from kindergarten through 12th grades.
