Dorati announces new concert series

Detroit Symphony Music Director Antal Dorati has announced the 1980-81 subscription concert series at Ford Auditorium.

This will mark the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's 67th concert season. In addition to the major subscription events, highlights of the season include a Bartok Festival celebrating the 100th anniversary of the composer's birth; a gala of the 75th birthday celebration for Maestro Dorati with two performances of Beethoven's "Fidelio"; the annual Holiday Festival and a Joffrey Ballet Dance Festival.

Dorati will honor three American composers celebrating milestone birthdays in 1980 — Aaron Copland, 80, Samuel Barber, 70, and William Schuman, 70.

Dorati will conduct 27 of the subscription concerts. He is scheduled to be on the podium at Ford Auditorium for a total of 12 weeks. The 1980-81 season marks Dorati's fourth as the orchestra's music director. On April 9, 1981 he will celebrate his 75th birthday.

The 1980-81 season consists of 25 subscription weeks, beginning on Sept. 25, and concluding on May 9. Sixteen major series comprise the sixteen offerings, including the full schedule of 20 Thursday/Saturday concerts, as well as two half-series of 10 Thursday/Saturday concerts.

A NEW FRIDAY evening Renaissance series includes eight concerts and is also available in two half-series of four each.

There will again be six Friday Morning NBD Coffee Concerts sponsored by the National Bank of Detroit, five Sunday afternoon Kresge family concerts and four Detroit Symphony Chamber Orchestra concerts.

Brass rubbing expert will give workshops

Brass knights, lords and ladies from England can help those interested in brass rubbing created an original wall hanging for less than $20 at 10 a.m., 1 and 3 p.m., May 14 at Christ Church Cranbrook.

When London (England) Brass Rubbing Centre representative Richard Etches brings more than 35 brass copies from old English churches to Cranbrook, he will explain the 13th-century art of brass rubbing.

No special talent or experience is required for participants to produce individually designed wall hangings.

Each person becomes the artist. He selects the paper material of his choice in sizes ranging from 10-by-10 inches to 37-by-15 inches. After choosing a brass figure (lord, lady, knight or small animal) he presses it against the material and rubs. The transfer design becomes a creation ready for hanging and exhibition.

In addition to black wax on white paper, each rubbing is available in gold, copper or silver on either white or black paper.

Material costs range from $1-$9. An initial donation of $10 goes to the sponsoring National Cathedral Association. Hangars are included.

During the work session, which can be completed in an hour and a half, Etches will discuss the history of the models and present day Washington Cathedral.

Reservations, which are limited, may be arranged by calling 644-0019 or 647-3078.

Christ Church Cranbrook, Lone Pine and Cranbrook, Bloomfield Hills, is an Episcopal church noted for its gothic architecture that is affiliated with Cranbrook Educational Community.
