

Lift Curfew, Ease Visiting Regulations On U-M Campus

ANN ARBOR -- University of Michigan Regents have extended for an additional year the liberalized dormitory curfew and visiting regulations which they adopted temporarily last January.

Regents continued the lifting of curfew regulations for all women over 21 who live in residence halls and for those under 21 who have their parents' permission. Men had already been free of hours restrictions.

Policies regarding visits by members of the opposite sex are to be determined democratically by the residents of each University housing unit.

THE REGENTS SAID such policies are to be established within these guidelines: "The proper balance of academic, social, and political aspects of University life; the maintenance of good taste; the meticulous safeguarding of the rights of minorities; the utilization of the experience and advice of University Housing staff."

Letters will be sent to women who plan to live in residence halls and to their parents indicating that housing may be available if they wish in certain units where special visiting rules may be provided.

Richard L. Cutler, outgoing vice president for student affairs, recommended that the Regents make the temporary policy permanent.

"The Board of Governors of Residence Halls and the director of University housing feel that the visitation policy has been extremely successful," Cutler told the Regents. "While a few abuses have occurred, there is no indication that these are more frequent than under a more restrictive policy."

"THE BOARD and the residence halls staff had made clear that promiscuous sexual intercourse and cohabitation will not be tolerated. The new policy casts the staff in a role which actually makes more effective their efforts to deal with deviant behavior."

Cutler noted that the student-faculty Board of Governors had certain reservations about eliminating curfew altogether, but felt that "the option left open to parents and their daughters is sufficiently flexible so that individual arrangements can be made to reflect the pattern which has developed in the home."

In adopting the temporary policy in January, the Regents recognized "the capacity of University of Michigan students to manage their personal lives in a mature and constructive fashion" and expressed the desire to "foster a climate within which personal freedom and responsibility contribute to educational and social development."

THIS IDEA, Cutler noted "has attracted attention from college administrators across the nation. With few exceptions, it has been the subject of unqualified praise, and the University is envied for having faced the issue with careful thought and for having reached a forward-looking decision."

The new policy has general support from both students and residence hall staff personnel. Cutler gave the Regents the results of an extensive survey of students and staff which was conducted last semester by U-M's Survey Research Center.

MOST STUDENTS and staff favored abolishing curfew for freshmen women, but half said that parental permission should be required for this.

When the new rules went into effect in January, 18 of the 30 men's houses voted to permit unlimited visitation all week. Ten permitted it sometime during the week, and two permitted visiting seven days a week.

Of the 32 women's houses, 12 permitted limited visitation only on weekends and four permitted it seven days a week. Three voted for unlimited visitation on weekends and five for unlimited visitation all week. Eight permitted visiting only for special events.

Of the 42 fraternity houses, 33 filed no report and so were assumed to have adopted the policy of the Interfraternity Council, visiting from 5 p.m. to midnight Monday through Thursday, 5 p.m. to women's curfew on Friday and Saturday, and 1 a.m. to midnight on Sunday.

Eight voted for unlimited visitation all week, one for unlimited visitation on weekends, and two for limited visitation all week.

ALTOGETHER, HOUSES voted to permit any visitation in noncommunal areas, including year all housing units, including fraternities and sororities, will be required to notify the University Housing Office of its visitation enforcement policies.

The entire policy's operation will be examined in the coming year. The reaffirmation or modification by the Regents in June 1969.
