

A parade—a perfect way to remember vets

It's the annual Memorial Day Parade, winding its way through downtown Farmington last Monday. Every parade needs a marching band, a role which the Farmington High School group fills nicely. The parade is sponsored each year by the Farmington-area veterans groups.

Stephanie Gould, age 2½, sits on top of the best viewing spot she can find (Ann Gould) for a better look-see at the happenings.

The fire department gets into the act by showing off its latest firefighting equipment. Actually, this antique engine belongs to Al Judge.

No parade is complete without a queen. This year's Miss Americanism is Dayle Churchill.

A military salute to the flag and to comrades who have died fighting for it is what Memorial Day commemorates.
